Maritimes Lashed By Storm

HALIFAX (CP) — A state of emergency was declared in Sydney Sunday as Cape Breton assessed the effects of a severe storm that left most of the Maritimes with snarled transportation and communications.

It is expected to take several days to erase most of the scars of the storm and more snow was expected in P.E.I. today with flurries elsewhere and temperatures in the 30s.

Sydney Mayor Earl Tubrett declared the state of emergency and city police ordered motorists off the road. Police were to arrest anyone who appeared to be merely "an onlooker," Tubrett said. There was practically no electrical power in the city.

Emergency reception centres were set up in two high schools for at least 33 families whose homes were badly damaged by the snow, rain and high winds.

City police were helped by local militia to protect damaged store fronts and homes from possible looting.

The city and many parts of Cape Breton and eastern Nova Scotia were pounded by winds with gusts to 85 miles an hour. One gust at Sydney airport was recorded at 115 miles an hour.

The rest of the Maritimes was blanketed with heavy, wet snow with some areas receiving almost a foot. Power was knocked out in many communities and Prince Edward Island was almost entirely without power.

There was at least one storm-connected fatality and reports of several persons missing.

Ferry service between New Brunswick and P.E.I. and North Sydney and Newfoundland was halted because of the high winds.

Several major highway snarls were reported and Canadian National passenger trains were being halted at Amherst, N.S. because of fallen telegraph poles and trees on the tracks.

George Alan McLean, 62, of Londonderry, N.S., was killed Sunday when a barn collapsed on him.

The Trans-Canada Highway between Amherst and Truro, N.S., was closed for four hours during the afternoon because of poor visibility and a 20-car pileup.

Four fishermen, two from Petit de Grat and two from Canso, were presumed drowned during the storm.

Fruit growers in the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia fear heavy apple crop damage but the full extent of damage cannot be determined until the snow melts.

An Air Canada spokesman said many flights had to be cancelled because of poor visability and wind conditions.

Small aircraft at Sydney and Debert, N.S., were heavily damaged as high winds tossed them around.

Vancouver Canucks unpacked new respect after returning unbeaten from their first road trip of the National Hockey League season. Eye-opening 5-4 and 1-0 weekend victories over Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers, respectively, gave Canucks a road record of three wins and a tie—and the lead in the Conn Smythe division. Travelling success also remained with Victoria Cougars, who played to a 5-5 draw with Flin Flon Bombers despite a one-sided penalty count against the Island team. Cougars now have a 3-1-2, won-lost-tied record with four games to go on their Prairie swing. Page 12.

Victoria-raised Cliff Thorburn, now living in Vancouver, made a strong comeback in the final to capture the Canadian snooker championship. Page 16.

Edmonton Eskimos have taken the lead in the hotly-contested Western Football Conference race following a 17-10 Sunday victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers. St. Louis Cardinals emerged as the only undefeated team in the National Football League with a 31-27 win over Houston. New England Patriots and Minnesota Vikings both suffered their first setbacks on Sunday's upset-filled program. Page 13.

Oregon Braces to Fight Blackout Blackmailer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — State, local and federal authorities have begun preparations to counter possible power blackouts in case an extortionist carries out his threat to dynamite more transmission line towers in the Portland area.

Bonneville Power Administration officials, area police and the FBI reviewed emergency plans Sunday after the power administration refused to pay a $1-million ransom demanded in an extortion letter.

"If we ever pay one penny of blackmail in this kind of situation, there isn't a power system in the United States that would be safe," a power official said.

Officials from area military installations and the Oregon National Guard were briefed on the situation.

Portland General Electric Co. and Pacific Power and Light, major city-based utilities, fired up reserve combustion-powered and steam plants to provide extra electricity if needed.

City officials asked for approval to order overtime shifts for workers already converting a civil-defence shelter into a communications centre for emergency services.

"What we probably face is an outage where the entire area might be totally without power for a few hours up to a day or two," said power administrator Don Hodel.

Since Sept. 26, 11 transmission towers have been dynamited in the Portland area, eight of them within the last week. Three of the towers were toppled, with damage estimated at $250,000, and unexploded devices were found attached to several other towers.

The Bonneville Power Administration supplies electricity to all city utilities.

There are 750,000 residents in the Portland area, Hodel said if more transmission towers are damaged, emergency measures might be required that would result in blackouts that would last 16 hours a day until towers were repaired.

A letter addressed to the administration arrived at the Portland FBI office Friday. It demanded $1 million and was signed "J. Hawker," which authorities interpret as a variation of the term "Jayhawker" used to describe guerrillas and looters after the U.S. Civil War.

The letter said in part: "The extent of damages resulting from the demolition of five or your power line towers Wednesday night is incidental. Our intent is to either collect $1 million or to make you people wish to hell we had."

Hodel said he believed the only motive of the extortionist is money.

Don't Be Specific —Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Richard Nixon advised his counsel, John Dean, on March 21, 1973, to make a "rather general" statement clearing each White House aide of any complicity in Watergate, according to a tape played in court today.

The tape of the discussion on the afternoon of March 21 was played in U.S. district court as Dean, the government's first witness in the Watergate cover-up trial, appeared to be nearing the end of four days of direct questioning by the prosecutors.

Nixon told Dean in the tape recorded conversation that he should prepare a written report "which is a very general, understand. Understand (laughs), I don't want to get all that goddamned specific . . .

"But if you make it rather general in terms of my — your — investigation indicates that this man did not do it, this man did not do it, this man did do that," Nixon said, emphasizing the "did" and "that" the last time he used those words.

Dean, who was said at the time to be heading Nixon's investigation of Watergate, then repeated for Nixon an earlier suggestion to allow witnesses, including White House aides, to go before the grand jury under the protection of immunity from prosecution so that they might give full testimony.

John Ehrlichman, then No. 2 White House aide, resisted Dean's suggestion and said "you end up with people in and out of the White House indicted for various, for various offences."

Island Leads In Fatalities

Vancouver Island led the province in fatal accidents at the weekend with four Port Alberni residents killed Sunday in a two-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Chemainus and the death of an unidentified man who stumbled while crossing a railway bridge at Duncan.

Two Lower Mainland road deaths brought the B.C. weekend total to seven.

Killed in the crash three miles north of Chemainus were Kai Yu Eng, 38, his wife Betty Gim Yip, 25, their son Howard Hayven, 3, and a family friend, Donna Mah, 7, RCMP said.

Eng's northbound car collided with a southbound Alberta-registered camper van.

The Fort McMurray couple was taken to hospital suffering from multiple injuries. Richard Garfat, 30, is listed in fair condition at Victoria General Hospital, and his wife Janet, 30, is in satisfactory condition at the Chemainus hospital.

Cause of the accident was not disclosed.

In Duncan a 37-year-old man was killed Friday when he stumbled while crossing a railway bridge and plunged into the Cowichan River, landing in two feet of water. His name had not been released this morning.

Gregory Wadman, 19, of Vancouver was killed Sunday when the car he was riding in struck a lamp standard in Vancouver.

Raymond Walter Harrison of New Westminster was killed Saturday in a single-vehicle accident on Highway 3, about 10 miles southwest of Penticton in the Okanagan. Harrison was alone when his car went out of control and struck a utility pole.

Four persons were taken to hospital Saturday following a two-car collision on Island Highway half a mile south of Parksville.

Scott Mathison, 62, of Port Alberni, was admitted to Nanaimo Regional General Hospital with chest and face injuries. He was in fair condition. His wife Ethel received chest injuries and was in good condition.

Also in good condition is another passenger, Mary Minard, of Port Alberni, who received head injuries.

Gerald Veilleux, of Nanaimo, the driver of the other car, was treated then released from hospital.

RCMP said charges are being contemplated.

PEAKS ERUPT

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) Three volcanoes have erupted in western Guatemala, raining hot ash and rocks on a nearby town and killing a baby boy, authorities said Sunday.

Most of the 12,000 residents of Yepocapa, 24 miles west of the capital, have fled their homes, the authorities said. They estimated damage to crops — mostly coffee and cotton — at $35 million.

The eruptions have affected more than 20 villages in the area.

CFB Civilians Talk Strike

EDMONTON (CP) — Rumblings of strike action among civilian employees at Canadian Forces Base Edmonton could spread across the country, Kent Green of Ottawa, national secretary-treasurer of the Union of National Defence Employees, said Sunday night.

Green, in Edmonton to attend a mass union rally tonight, said in an interview that there is discontent across the country with wages paid to the civilian employees of armed forces bases. However, he agreed after talking with Lou Purcell, president of the Alberta branch of the union, that the Alberta employees are much more militant than workers at other bases.

Ken Munroe, an executive officer with the union's Victoria local, confirmed the problem is a national one.

"I can confirm Mr. Green's statement is correct and includes this area," he said, "Federal civil servants are being paid rates way under outside ones."

Munroe said civil servants, who have put in years of service, would be reluctant to leave, jeopardizing their perision plans but short-term employees and "younger people" would be lured to outside industries because of the bigger wages.

Purcell said many of the 759 civilian employees, especially the heating plant operators, are working seven days a week, up to 12 hours a day, because the armed forces are unable to keep employees who leave to obtain better wages elsewhere.

Anderson Backed

VERNON (CP) — David Anderson says he considers he has been given a clear-cut mandate to lead the provincial Liberal party.

Anderson of Victoria was re-elected leader of the B.C. Liberal party by acclamation at a three-day provincial Liberal party convention which ended here Sunday.

Doreen Braverman of Vancouver was re-elected president of the party, winning over Anthony (Tony) Graham of Vancouver.

Don Wray of Victoria was chosen vice-president, defeating nominees Don Green of Vancouver and Don Ohs of Kamloops.

Former Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford was elected membership chairman by acclamation.

In a close vote, the Liberal youth caucus delegates elected Sue Hutchinson of Victoria Liberal youth caucus chairman. She defeated University of B.C. student Tony Zipp to succeed UBC student Mark Moseley to the position.

Among the 11 regional vice-presidents elected, all by acclamation, was Frank Preston of Victoria.

Rich Nations Blamed for Famines

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A U.S. government study of the world food crisis says agricultural policies of rich nations have kept poor countries from becoming self-sufficient.

The study contradicts the view that the world is facing a crisis in which population growth outstrips the ability of countries to produce enough food, the Washington Post says.

The study predicts huge surpluses in rich countries and huge deficits in poor ones by 1985 unless there is "a serious re-evaluation of agricultural and food consumption policies in all parts of the world," the Post says.

There is no actual worldwide shortage of food the report says and blames hunger abroad on artificial price structures, subsidies, mismanagement, political decisions and "cheap food" policies.

It says, "since supply was seriously interrupted in 1972 (by the large-scale sale of U.S. grain to Russia) and 1974 (by bad weather), prices have remained high, supplies are unstable and the immediate future uncertain.

The study was prepared by the economic research service of the U.S. agriculture department and has not been published, the Post says, adding that the newspaper had obtained a copy.

A continuation of present trends, one projection in the report shows, might result in a surplus of 51.9 million tons of food in developed countries and a deficit of 47.6 million tons in developing countries by 1985.

A House of Representatives agriculture subcommittee report released Saturday said mass starvation will occur throughout the world if food production is not intensified and population patterns are not changed.

He'll Pay $1.5M for His Patron, Selassie

Manchester Guardian

LONDON — Col. Hubert Fauntleroy Julian, former personal pilot of Emporer Halle Selassie and international arms dealer extraordinary, has offered the Ethiopian military government nearly $1.5 million for the release from prison of the deposed monarch.

The 77-year-old colonel, who now runs a sugar brokerage from New York, said at the Ethiopian imperial embassy in London that he had promised to deposit the money with the International Red Cross in Switzerland.

He showed reporters a cheque already written out for $1.45 million and drawn on the United Bank of Switzerland. He said the money would come from a personal profit of $88 million he had just made on a four-million-ton sugar deal.

"I am very serious about this," he told incredulous reporters.

"I owe my prominence and stature to the benevolence of his imperial majesty the emperor of Ethiopia and I was very distressed to learn of his imprisonment."

Haile Salassie, aged 88, was deposed last month by an army coup. Since then he has been held in custody in the arm's Fourth Division headquarters in Addis Ababa. The military government has accused him of salting away a vast fortune in overseas banks.

Col. Julian proposes that the emperor and his family should be allowed to fly to exile in a plane from Air France or a U.S. military aircraft. The cash offered would be used to pay off the alleged $1 million which the emperor owes in taxes.

Julian, born in Port of Spain, Trinidad, and once a British subject, has had a colorful, not to say eccentric, career. He was invited to Ethiopia by the emperor in the 1930s after an unsuccessful attempt to fly the Atlantic. He commanded the emperor's air force of three battered planes (he crashed one of them) until the Italian invasion. At that time his self-designed uniform included a pink silk polo shirt, white breeches, deerskin boots and spurs.

During the war he invited Hitler's deputy, Herman Goering, to an armed duel and he later became a registered arms dealer in the U.S. supplying Israel, Egypt, Juan Batista in Cuba, and President Moise Thombe in the breakaway Congolese state of Katanga. After Batista's downfall he sued Fidel Castro over a cancelled contract.

Emigrant Limits Denied

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — President Ford said today the Soviet Union has not promised to let a specific number of Jews and dissident citizens emigrate annually in return for special trading rights with the U.S.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen, speaking for Ford, said the president wanted "to clarify" the Soviet position because it "appears to have been widely misunderstood."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, (Dem-Wash.), and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced last Friday that the emigration issue had been settled and that the way was clear for congressional passage of a trade reform bill giving the Soviet Union "most favored nation" status with the U.S.

Jackson said then in a letter to Kissinger that he understood the issuance of visas at the rate of 60,000 per year to Jews and dissidents would be considered "a benchmark," and minimum standards of Soviet compliance with terms of the agreement.

But Nessen said today that Ford wanted to stress that Kissinger used no number in a letter sent to Jackson.

"All the assurances we have received from the Soviet Union are contained in the letter from the secretary of state to Sen. Jackson," Nessen said. "This letter, as I am sure you have already noted, does not contain specific numbers.

Machinegun Claims Two In Belfast

By FRAN KJOHNSTON

BELFAST (UPI) — A man firing a sub-machinegun out the rear window of a stolen car today killed two men who were walking to work through the Roman Catholic Falls Road area of Belfast because weekend violence had stopped the buses.

Police said the victims, Michael Loughlin, 18, and his step-brother Edward Morgan, 27, died shortly after arrival at Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital.

Police said the car used in the attack was stolen in the predominantly Protestant Green Castle quarter on the northern outskirts of Belfast.

The mother of the victims said they normally rode a bus to work, but service was cut this morning because of weekend violence.

In another incident Sunday night, a hoax bomb was planted on the window-sill of a Catholic politician. Army ex-

Sawmill Unity 'Top Priority'

THRUMS (CP) — Resources Minister Bob Williams told a public meeting Sunday that the top priority of his department is trying to unite independent sawmills of B.C. currently suffering poor lumber market conditions and mounting layoffs.

Williams, speaking to a group of 70 persons from this West Kootenay community, said the government is spending money to develop new marketing trends for lumber. He said dealings with Japan and the Orient have been successful.

One reason for a poor lumber economy, said Williams, was that "indepdentent mills are being exploited by pulp companies" which pay low prices for wood chips used in pulp production.

He said legislative action was one measure of ensuring lumber mills get a better price for their chips.

Williams said another reason for the recent sag in the lumber market is the cut in the U.S.'s quota for new housing. He said the trend lowers the amount of limber imported by the U.S.

Speaking specifically about this area, Williams said he saw "a decade of economic strength" based on the future expansion plans of B.C. Hydro, Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd. in Castlegar, and Kootenay forest products in Nelson, about 15 miles east of here.

He said the government was considering starting a municipal tree farm in the Nakusp area, 90 miles north of Nelson.

Williams said areas like Burns Lake in northwestern B.C., and Prince Rupert, on the west coast, were flourishing with the presence of government-owned industry.

"The job security is strong where the NDP has a foothold in indutry," the minister of resources said.

He said that Cancel at Castlegar "is a success story and if the government hadn't purchased the company it would have been purchased by Weyerhauser," a giant American-based lumber conglomerate.

Williams said the two-year outlook for Cancel was bright, noting a strong pulp market and indicating there could be significant expansion in the Arrow Lakes basin which stretches from Revelstoke to Trail and Castlegar.

Referring to the Ocean Falls area on B.C.'s south coast, he said it was an untouched empire of natural resources.

Williams also told the group the system of bidding for stump salvaging was old and the entire process would be reviewed. Small companies now secure authority for stump salvage through the B.C. Forest Service.

Billie Jean Collapses

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tennis star Billie Jean King, 31, was taken to hospital complaining of chest and shoulder pains Sunday after she collapsed on a golf course, officials say.

After an examination, she was sent home to rest.

Mrs. King was in the gallery watching the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament with her husband, Larry, when she collapsed.

There was no indication of heart or chest trouble, a hospital spokesman said after she was released.

Mob Turns Violent In Saigon

Times News Services

SAIGON — A violence-packed protest involving approximately 1,000 monks, nuns, priests and political leaders rocked the South Vietnamese capital Sunday.

The demonstration started with a rally in which politicians called for the ouster of President Nguyen Van Thieu, an end to the fighting in Vietnam, and the release of all political prisoners.

Violence broke out when rock-throwing and stick-wielding students and children split off from the rally and attacked a stalled police jeep, overturned it and set it on fire.

The group then marched on the downtown area where a vanguard of youngsters stormed the National Assembly building, breaking its ornate glass doors and porcelain flower pots.

The group did not enter the National Assembly building and afterward milled around with banners and yelled slogans denouncing the Thieu administration.

A government spokesman said 36 policemen were hurt and taken to hospitals, but none was believed seriously injured. He gave no casualty figures for the demonstrators.

In another protest, some 2,000 Roman Catholics marched in Can Tho, a Mekong Delta city 95 miles southwest of Saigon, as an opposition congressman fired two pistol shots at an effigy of Thieu. A sign on the effigy called Thieu, "No. 1 corrupt man."

An announced boycott by Saigon's 18 daily newspapers of all government news failed to materialize as today's briefing was attended by the usual number of local reporters.

Meanwhile in Inchon, 20 miles from the South Korean capital of Seoul, an American bishop led 500 Roman Catholic priests, nuns and laymen in a protest that police tried to break up with tear gas.

It was the second anti-government demonstration by Catholics in South Korea since August when President Chung Hee Park lifted two decrees cracking down on polical dissent.

Supertanker Flees Warrant

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — A supertanker was nearing mid-Atlantic today, leaving behind in Newfoundland an unpaid bill of $300,000 and a warrant for the arrest of her captain.

The Halcyon the Great outdistanced an RCMP patrol vessel Saturday to reach the safety of international waters off the south coast.

A warrant for the arrest of Captain Brian Greenwood, 35, was issued by a magistrate's court after the vessel sailed without paying the fuel bill to Newfoundland Refining Co. Ltd.

The 226,700-ton British tanker docked Oct. 14 at Come-By-Chance, site of an oil refinery 100 miles west of here on Placentia Bay, and unloaded 1.5 million barrels of crude oil for Newfoundland Refining.

Until August, the vessel was owned by the Court Line of London but the firm declared bankruptcy and was handed over to a trustee.

The tanker was chartered by Shaheen Natural Resources Inc. of New York, parent company of Newfoundland Refining, and 16 years remained on the charter when Shaheen won a court battle to have the vessel complete her contract.

The Court Line had sought the ship's return to London.

The Federal Court of Canada rejected an application from the owners for an injunction directing Newfoundland Refining not to interfere with the ship's departure for England.

The court also rejected the oil company's plea for an order restraining the owners from using the vessel in any manner inconsistent with the charter.

Captain Greenwood said in an interview Sunday he had sailed on the instructions of the trustees.

"I was advised the charter was over," he said on ship-to-shore radio. "I took the advice of the present management."

APPROVED SWEETNER MAY INJURE BRAIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved sale of a new sugar substitute despite evidence that it may cause brain damage in children, according to Senator William Proxmire.

A spokesman for a leading pharmaceutical firm in Victoria said he had never heard of aspartime nor can he find a listing for it.

"I don't think it's available here," he said.

Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) accused FDA commission Dr. Alexander Schmidt of "misfeasance in office" for permitting the manufacture and sale of aspartame, an artificial sweetener 180 times sweeter than sugar.

"In view of the present skyrocketing price of sugar, the economic pressures on the FDA to approve it and the potential profits from its use are tremendous," Proxmire said in a statement.

"I charge commissioner Schmidt with 'misfeasance' in office, for while he has technically not broken the law, what he has done is wrongful and potentially injurious to millions of children."

Schmidt called Proxmire's charges "needless scare tactics."

Froxmire said there was scientific evidence that aspartame becomes toxic when combined with monosodium glutamate, a chemical used widely to preserve and enhance the flavor of processed foods.

Swiss Vote to Keep Their Foreigners

BERN (CP) — Swiss voters have decisively rejected a proposal to deport 540,000 foreigners in the next three years.

Nearly 70 per cent of those voting in Sunday's referendum rejected the constitutional amendment. The vote was 1,589,890 to 878,739. A similar proposal four years ago came much closer to success, with a 45-per-cent affirmative vote. The amendment was proposed by a right-wing group called the National Action Against Over-Foreignerization of People and Homeland. It would have set a limit of 500,000 foreigners living in Switzerland by Jan. 1, 1978.

This would have meant expulsion of 540,000 non-Swiss, most of them farmhands, unskilled industrial laborers, street cleaners, dishwashers and waiters. About two-thirds of these are Spaniards and Italians attracted by better pay than they can get at home.

Less than an hour after news of the crushing defeat of the National Action party's effort to send half the foreign population packing, James Schwarzenbach, a conservative politician, said he will press ahead with a similar public initiative.

Schwarzenbach headed the National Action party when, in 1970, it sponsored a move to expel foreigners.

Park and Ride Service 'Sometime Next Year'

Park-and-ride service for provincial government employees will begin "sometime next year," depending on when buses can be made available, Public Works Minister Bill Hartley said today.

Hartley would not be pinned down on the target date for the shuttle service and said the problem rests in finding buses for the scheme.

The proposed busing service calls for large parking areas on the northern perimeter of the downtown where public servants can leave their cars during the day and be shuttled to work.

"We've hit a snag in property acquisition," said Hartley. "But if we can't solve those snags in acquiring private property, we'll use land we already own.

"So we're ready to start on short notice once we get the buses."

The minister would not say what provincial property might be used and he refused to elaborate on details of the service.

The system was originally scheduled to start this fall with a long-term aim of eliminating 1,000 parking spaces around the Legislative precinct and thus freeing land for new development.

At that time, it was announced parking facilities would only be available for government employees but the shuttle buses, which will operate at 10-minute intervals throughout the day, will also carry other passengers during off hours.

Battery Test

LONDON (CP) — The electrical car may be on the brink of a technical breakthrough. Tests in Britain of a new type of sodium-sulphur battery have shown it is possible to extend the limited range of such vehicles between battery charges to at least 65 miles, says the Electricity Council.

Let It All Come Out

In a democracy it's important the voters know as much as possible about the political process, the checks and balances, the influences which pull politicians in different directions. For this reason alone Premier Barrett's promise of a new Elections Act which will force disclosure of the sources of each political party's finances is a good move in the direction towards opening up the system to public scrutiny.

It will give us the facts about a slew of dark rumors about politics in British Columbia, such as the existence of a huge "free enterprise education fund" controlled by Social Credit, a war chest for the next election.

And the truth about the sources of funds for the Liberals and Conservatives — the traditional old-line parties of big business — is more likely to be embarrassing than scandalous. For 20 long years, most of industry's money went to the ruling party in B.C., with a little insurance money going to each of the free enterprise splinter groups.

The extent of organized labor's active support for the New Democratic Party — which unions contribute and which do not — will be interesting to learn. But if the new law only counts cash, the public isn't going to get a true picture of the political resources each party commands.

All four parties, but particularly the NDP, which pioneered this field, depend nowadays on small armies of volunteers to knock on doors, paint lawn signs, crank mimeograph machines, distribute literature and a multitude of other grubby jobs.

It would be difficult, but any disclosure law should try to take account of these kinds of donations, perhaps calculating hours put in by volunteers at the minimum wage. No disclosure law should neglect as well the assorted pressure groups like the Majority Movement which spring up from time to time with an express political purpose behind them, although none has ever elected an MLA. Nor should the assorted lobbyists — they're not all in Washington and Ottawa — who bring pressures to bear on the B.C. government be allowed to hide their lights under bushel baskets.

Salvation From Sunlight

An unheralded bill in the United States senate approving a $100 million expenditure on solar energy research during the next fiscal year could make recurrent energy crises a footnote to history. In a decade when energy supplies have become a political weapon, not to mention the non-renewable nature of conventional fuels, scientists are increasingly squinting at the bright sunlight flooding this planet each day.

Solar power is not a new concept. In a Stockholm museum a solar furnace model dating from 1612 is an artifact of man's curiosity. It uses the same principle as the 1,000 kilowatt capacity French solar furnace operating in the Bas-Pyrenees. A large collecting dish absorbs sunlight putting it in contact with a silicon or cadmium sulphide solar cell which in turn generates electricity — at a price approximately 1,000 times more than current energy costs. And there's the rub, of course. But scientists are now predicting that economical solar energy could be available in 10 to 20 years, given adequate funds.

Considering that the U.S. estimates its oil deficit will surpass 16 million barrels per day in 1990, causing a trade imbalance from this one product alone in excess of $15 billion per year, money for solar research should be easy to come by in most industrialized countries. Even now the U.S. National Aeronautic and Space Administration is talking of a 25 million pound satelite in orbit 22,300 miles in space, beaming power to the planet by microwave. United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization officials estimate that sunlight could fuel 20 per cent of U.S. needs within 50 years. The 20 per cent figure represents the total energy consumed by the U.S. in 1970.

While Canada sits on one of the planet's richest mother lodes of fossil fuels and hydro-electric power we could also benefit from getting in on the ground floor of solar research. By risking a relatively small amount of capital in the early 1960s Canada became a leading nation in satellite communications systems. And at the rate we are selling our resources to the highest bidder sunlight may eventually be our salvation too.

Andy Hardy and Police

What is all this nonsense about precise measurements on the length and shape of a policeman's hair? Like a bolt of blue from the 1950s Vancouver Police Chief Don Winterton has decreed that police must have tapered haircuts. Sideburns may only be one inch wide and a quarter of an inch thick. Moustaches may droop only a quarter of an inch below the corners of the mouth and, if waxed, may extend one inch beyond the corners of the mouth. Beards may only be grown with the express permission of the chief constable.

Is this central casting or a police force? Why should police officers be forced to adopt a different physical appearance, resembling a caricature of Andy Hardy and the styles of 25 years ago? London bobbies sport all manner of moustaches, beards, even shoulder length hair, and still manage to enforce the law. Vancouver's women police officers can wear their hair in any style provided it is neat and tidy and does not interfere with their duties; why don't the same directions apply to male officers?

The police chief military mentality on hair estranges their men from the community they protect. To many young people the inference is plain: the policeman supports the past; he is a creature of the status quo; a non-understanding enemy, and a refugee from a Prussian war. If Canadian police chiefs spent less time measuring moustaches and hair length, and more time measuring morale they might surprise themselves.

Neat Rules With Ragged Ends

Oh, the irony of it.

That British Columbia Alcoholic and Drug Commission detoxification centre that wouldn't fit in Rockland will apparently harmonize with a more run-down area on the fringes of downtown.

The McClure Street location was recommended for approval by the Advisory Planning Commission at its Thursday night secret meeting.

Why?

Well, gosh, that area is zoned R-3 which means it is a multiple dwelling district, which means college fraternity buildings, church halls, boarding houses, hospitals, private schools, rest homes, and all the jetsam of better neighborhoods may be located there.

Of course city hall gets uneasy when these kinds of things are said. As some alderman correctly said, Commission director Dr. Charles Aharan should have consulted the city before staking out the original Rockland location.

Wagged Finger

They would have wagged the municipal finger and explained how things are done in these parts.

And as they are saying now, with police cars coming and going all night Rockland residents wouldn't be able to sleep. Or as another good soul put it, at least some people using the centre would be skid road types and they might not feel comfortable in such posh surroundings.

Have any of the city fathers put that question to the alcoholics wandering around within a block of city hall's elegant old architecture? And won't the McClure Street residents have their rest disturbed just as much as the Rockland residents?

It's all so embarassing. Perhaps the whole thing should be dropped.

"We have been given every indication that many of the problems that related to the last place will not apply to this place — and that's a masterly bureaucratic statement for you," Dr. Aharans said.

In other words Dr. Aharans has been led to believe that the residents of McClure Street won't complain about an alcoholic detoxification centre in their neighborhood.

If McClure Street residents do complain the righteous city aldermen and planners can explain just what R-3 zoning means. In simple terms: the detoxification centre will go on McClure Street because the area's R-3 designation says that's where those types of things go.

ROCKLAND DISTRICT
. . . too good for centre?

But this bureaucratic self-justification is worse than the original sin of giving a flat no answer to the Rockland location and a studied yes to the McClure location.

What if the people in the McClure area mount a campaign against the centre? Will the aldermen and planners be as quick to act as they were on the Rockland location? It will be interesting to see democracy in action at city hall.

The shuck and jive that went on downtown when a few Rockland residents complained about the original location is only ancillary to the underlying question. Why his this city given the Advisory Planning Commission, an appointed body, the almost unquestioned right to divide and quarantine Victoria?

Victoria has always been a tight little town run for the good of the people. But some of the people are more equal than others.

"The R-1A single family residential district is the most restricted of the residential zones. It relates only to the Rockland district of the city . . ." That from the city's zoning bylaw, drafted by the Victoria town planning commission.

Expressing Doubt

Any home owner would worry about a detoxification centre moving in next door. No one can blame Rockland, McClure or any other residents of this city for expressing doubts.

But like it or not, alcoholics and drug users are the spawn of a society we have all had a share in forming. If they have the gumption to seek a cure for themselves, and society, that includes the advisory planning commission with its neat rules, sees fit to cloister them in the poorer of two areas, it is a bad start on their long trip back to normal society.

On a larger scale the federal government decreed that native people had to live in rural ghettoes. One hundred years later the native-white problem is worse than it ever was.

Was it ever thus, as we trot out another conventional solution for a radical problem?

It will be interesting to see how aldermen deal with the detoxification centre location issue when it comes before council this week. Municipal elections are less than one month away and the people of this city will be fascinated to see what imagination council possesses when it comes to dealing with a human issue.

Third World Is Good Business

OTTAWA — Canada's revenue from trade with the under-developed countries of the third world is increasing faster, as a result of soaring commodity prices, than its aid to the same nations.

This was one of the facts used by Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who runs this country's foreign aid programs, in an attempt to draw attention to the need for a fresh approach to relations between the rich and poor countries. He put the growth in Canada's revenue from these nations last year at about $100 million more than the increase in its aid to them. For the first five months of this year, trade revenues from them went up by about $200 million and Canadian aid in the opposite direction increased by about $150 million.

We are, therefore, still making a very good thing out of the third world, as are a good many other countries. Its total financial debt to the advanced nations is about $100 billion. It costs those countries $15 billion a year to service it. That is more than they receive, in total, in all forms of foreign aid.

Already A Failure

Gerin-Lajoie, the president of the Canadian International Development Agency, was trying to arouse Canadian attention on the subject. One of CIDA's vice-presidents, Marc Beaudoin, offered his personal view that the United Nations' second development decade, launched four years ago, can already be seen as a failure. It was to have made up for the errors and shortcomings of the first development decade, from 1960 to 1970.

"Already, after four years, it is clear that the program is not going to be a success, leading governments, particularly those of the third world, to question some fundamental assumptions and orientations about the international system," Beaudoin said.

The great rise in oil prices during the last year has brought some of the under-developed countries to the edge of desperation and has compounded the problems of all those who are not themselves petroleum producers. It has caused a sharp rise in the price of fertilizers at a time when, in the view of the Food and Agricultural Organization, it is doubtful whether there has ever been such a critical world-wide food situation.

The world's food reserve at the present time is sufficient for only 27 days, according to FAO estimates. Increased fertilizer prices have added about $500 million to the under-developed nations' payments to other countries and a short-fall of a ton of fertilizer will be reflected a little later on in a 10-ton reduction in food production.

The problem of the under-developed world is usually summarized in terms of the gap between its poverty and the wealth of the advanced nations. That is an unfortunate comparison because it states the problem in insoluble terms and because the existence of a gap, in itself, is not important. What matters are actual standards of North America and Western Europe. The problem is not to bring a Javanese villager to the levels of a New Yorker but to see him rise a small notch up the human scale.

PAUL GERIN-LAJOIE
. . . debts higher than aid

A combination of events have left Beaudouin and others convinced that the relationship that now exists between the rich nations and the poor nations cannot go on indefinitely. Part of it is the acute nature of the payments problems facing some of those countries. Part of it is the spreading recognition that the foreign aid programs of the post-war period have failed in their purpose. They have helped but they have not solved the problem. Indeed, their success in reducing mortality rates is the underlying cause of the new population pressures.

Finally, part of the reason why men like Beaudouin feel as they do is the changed attitude of the third world, visible during last spring's special assembly of the UN, at the Law of the Sea Conference in Caracas and on other occasions.

Strengthen Control

The Beaudouin view is not exceptional but he is more than usually precise in his perception of the forms of tension likely to arise in the near future between developed and under-developed nations. The oil producers have given us one taste of this. The CIDA official clearly believes president Boumedienne of Algeria, who gave notice at the UN special assembly that third world nations will strengthen systematically their control over their resources to ensure that they are of maximum benefit to the country of origin. The implications of this for the resource-importing countries, the United States, Britain and Japan, are enormous. If this approach spreads, it would also have major implications for a resource-exporting country such as Canada.

Beaudoin also noted an increased conviction among third world governments that nationalization of foreign-owned property is a means to self-development. The burden of servicing foreign debt is becoming so great that Beaudouin foresees the possibility of "continual debt defaulting and even debt repudiation."

In all of this, Canadian officials are seeking to increase this country's external aid programs and to redesign them so that they will be more effective. They are also very conscious of the size of the task and they do not come across as optimistic men.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Scott's Challenge

I noted Jack Scott's references to me in his column of October 3 but I have waited until now to make my reply so that I could gather the necessary facts to back my point. Since Mr. Scott wrote that particular column, Graham Lea announced that the highways department would be posting lower speed limits on various highways throughout the province. This announcement caused much jubilation among those of Mr. Scott's ilk but unfortunately the truthful statistics now emanating from the United States do not bear them out. It seems that since the adoption of the 55 mph limit there, the city of Los Angeles has had a 22 per cent drop in fatalities on its surface streets with speed limits much below 55 mph. The state of Nevada, which had no speed limit on its freeways and did not adopt the limit until June, had until that time, and since, the same 25 per cent to 29 per cent reduction in deaths as all the other states. The state of Colorado conducted its own survey and was able to break down the 25 per cent overall reduction in fatalities as follows: 7.5 per cent from the lower limit, 6.25 per cent from reduced traffic volume, and 11.25 per cent from such automobile safety improvements as seat belts, collapsing steering columns, better brakes, radial ply tires etc. This evidence and much more, too lengthy to relate here, tends to discredit reduced speed as the panacea of traffic fatalities as Mr. Scott and the vocal minority would have us believe.

There are those who would say that any reduction in deaths is worth the extra driving time, increased freight and transportation costs, driver boredom and fatigue, and traffic congestion. This is all well and good when we think of innocent people bleeding on the asphalt. But, how many die in accidents of their own cause, through intoxication or gross stupidity? How many die needlessly because they were too ignorant or lazy to buckle up? How many die because they lacked the competence to take the most elementary evasive action? After all these factors are subtracted, how many truly innocent people die through no fault of their own after taking every reasonable precaution? How many will then be saved by the lower speed limits? Not very many.

Mr. Scott referred to me in his column as some kind of speed freak with an ego problem and challenged me to a race around Western Speedway to prove his point. For Mr. Scott's benefit I will repeat that I own, by choice, a 1970 Ford pick-up with an eight-foot camper. The truck has disc front brakes, eight-ply tires, and I keep it in excellent condition. For my own safety I threw out the silly lap seat belts and replaced them with inertial-reel lap and shoulder harnesses and for safer night vision I have installed quartz-halogen headlights. I will be more than pleased to accept Mr. Scott's challenge, but as he must have known, Western Speedway has been closed for the winter from about the time that he issued the challenge. Since I am the challengee I reserve the right to the conditions and I will contact Mr. Scott in February to make the arrangements. I'm sure I can arrange something that will open his eyes, and his mind. — Paul Whitworth, 1118 Totem Lane.

From the Times of October 21, 1914

The task of delimiting the international boundary between the panhandle portion of Alaska and the Yukon territory, which was started in 1904, has been finished and Noel J. Ogilvie, who has had charge of the work for the Canadian government since 1909, has returned to Vancouver. He will leave soon to prepare his maps and reports. The delimitation has been done jointly by the Canadian and the United States governments. The latter finished its portion of the work last summer. Monuments made of metal and immersed in concrete have been placed at intervals along the border. In wooded country a path 20 feet wide has been cleared to mark the division between the territories of the respective nations.

Busing in Boston—It's Hard on a Lot of People

By VAL SEARS

BOSTON — The roar of police motorcycles drowns out the singing and the screaming as the square yellow buses pull up in front of South Boston High School so the black children don't hear anything at first.

But then the helmeted cops cut their engines. Going up the front steps of the school, the blacks catch every word.

"Bye, bye blackbird," the white crowd is singing. And they yell things like: "C'mon out niggah, Southie will eat you." A young mother screams over the head of her child in a stroller: "Get your black asses out of there, niggah, that's our school."

The blacks raise their clenched fists and grin and shout curses and then go in the front door of the dull brown school.

It's the middle of the third week of forced school busing in Boston and in this mean, tough Irish district called Southie, things are not going well.

But however bad the racial clashes may be in Southie — and one or two other formerly all-white high schools in central Boston — liberal mayor Kevin White is determined there will be no more stalling on desegregation. Judge Garrity's order to obey the Constitution will be carried out.

It's hard, though. Hard on parents, hard on the children, hard on the police who haven't had a day off in three weeks.

Busing means taking black children from the ghettoes and their crummy schools by bus, every day, to better schools in white districts. And it also means taking white children out of their neighborhoods and educating them in the crummy schools so as to achieve a racial balance.

The surprising thing is that the program is working as well as it is. South Boston is bad, with boycotts and mass truancy almost every day. But in the remaining districts, where 18,200 of the city's 94,000 public school children are being bused, attendance is around 80 per cent.

Part of the reason it's working is the fact that the police are enforcing the law and either the children go on the bus where they're told or they don't get an education at all.

Violence is an every-day occurence in South Boston

The new Roman Catholic cardinal of Boston, Humberto Medeiros, has forbidden his parochial schools to take any additional pupils so even that escape is cut off.

But the program is also working because of people like Frank and Marianna Hannigan and their five children. The Hannigans, old Irish, are struggling, agonizing, sometimes compromising their principles over busing, but keeping the liberal faith as well as they can.

Both college-educated — Frank now a teacher at an exclusive Boston school at $18,000 a year — the Hannigans could afford to escape to the Boston suburbs where they wouldn't have to worry about busing. But they won't go.

Mrs. Hannigan, sitting in the kitchen of their comfortable frame house in an all-white neighborhood just south of Boston's largest black area, tries to explain.

"Frank and I believe if you earn your living in the city, you ought to live in the city. And we like living here. But we pay a price and the children pay a price for that. Frankly, the two that are bused are not getting as good an education as they should. But we believe in desegregation and if that's the price the children have to pay . . . well, it's too bad, but they'll have to pay it."

But the Hannigans, forced to the wall, have had to compromise as well.

"Our daughter Theresa is 17 and very beautiful. She was supposed to be bused to Dorchester High School this year in a black neighborhood. A teacher there told Frank: 'If you care one tiny bit for your daughter don't let her come here.' "

Mrs. Hannigan stares down at the table, looking ashamed. "What could we do? We couldn't let her go. She was frightened. Now Theresa is at Archbishop Williams' school for $700 a year."

She looks up. "But when Julie is old enough — she's 12 now—Frank and I want her to go to Dorchester." Mrs. Hannigan smiles uncertainly.

"Perhaps it will be better then. It's got to be, doesn't it? If we all pitch in things will get better for everybody. At least, that's what I keep saying."

Across the city in a dingy, all-black housing development, 15-year-old Ernest Hurd sits at the window and stares across the water.

"I want to go to school," he says, "but I'll quit for good before I go to South Boston and get killed.

"I'll get a job, I guess. Hell, I don't know what I'll do. But I'd rather get a job than have to swim across the river every day. I don't know why they have to take me out of my own school. We (blacks) fought damned hard for that school. There is going to be a lot of people ending up in the hospital. That's all I can say."

Last week, in Southie, several people — teachers as well as students — suffered various injuries from knives, hurled lunch trays and steel-toed boots. The tribalized Irish in South Boston can no more abide the thought of their tight little community being disordered by blacks than can the Irish Protestants of Belfast consider the Catholics getting uppity. The same tough, screaming women shout almost the same sexual curses on G St. in South Boston as on the Falls Rd., in Belfast.

Nor does the level of education make any difference in determining bigotry. A study done by a Harvard sociologist showed that the prospect of busing white children to bring about racial balance was every bit as unpopular among the college-educated as those who never finished high school.

In fact, the lower the level of education the more likely is the acceptance of busing, among the Irish Catholics, Italians and Jews studied in the survey.

But among the high-school-educated tradespeople of Southie, the passion can be almost unbelievable. When Senator Edward Kennedy — a local folk hero — came to Boston to support busing, the local papers were divided about even using some of the words hurled at him. The Globe did quote one: "Why don't you put your one-legged son on a bus for a black neighborhood?"

Even if Mayor White and the police manage to keep the lid on Southie, and the other districts now under busing orders stay calm, there's trouble ahead. The next two districts to be bused next September are at least as hard-nosed as Southie about having their children taken to black schools.

★ ★ ★

One certain trouble spot is Charlestown, a lower middle-class white district, and the other is a predominantly Italian part of Boston.

Even now, so many police are required in Southie that the numbers are kept secret so as not to reveal how drastically underpoliced the rest of the city is. And the police are costing $100,000 a day in overtime alone.

Out in front of South Boston High last week, a bearded, long-haired cop in uniform — he was usually in undercover work, he explained — said the crowds would leave soon.

"But as soon as they move us out, the word will get around that there are no cops on the hill and the crowds will come back and we'll be called in again."

How long will they have to be on duty in South Boston?

"Until next June," he said.

Cut Highway Speed by Lowering Horsepower

By COLMAN McCARTHY

Next to laws constraining pet dogs and cats, nothing embroils Americans more than laws tampering with their other irrational love: the automobile. No one has ever cured this car sickness, but Congress is currently working on two pieces of auto-safety legislation which daringly suggest American highways are not adult playgrounds but are severe public health hazards.

One highway safety proposal would extend indefinitely the 55 m.p.h. speed limit. The 55 figure was imposed during last year's fuel shortage — with many finding it ironic that this speed limit was imposed to save gas, not lives. But with "crisis" passed, it has been calculated that the lower speed limit saved 7,000 lives in one eight-month period. With that kind of boon, however inadvertent, some senators are seeking to keep the 55 m.p.h. limit.

Their proposal is said to have a fair chance for enactment. After that, though, it is open to question how effective such a law will be. Citizens have been accepting auto-safety laws in recent years, but most of these laws have been attempts to control Detroit, not control the drivers of Detroit's machines. The guilt was happily placed on the industry.

A law now appears suggesting that much of the highway slaughter is not caused by bad cars or bad luck but by the driver himself, and his own speed lust.

From the looks of it, many speeding drivers will be stopped only by the law of averages, not a law of Congress: The department of transportation says that large numbers of motorists have forsaken fuel shortage slowdown and are now back to tooling along at 60, 65, 70 and up.

The love affair goes on

At some point, the issue will have to be faced: What needs reducing is not so much the speed limit of motorists as the immense power of their vehicles. Here, for sure, Detroit's philosophy of car safety deserves censure. It builds powerful engines that not only waste fuel but waste the customer's money, because he will seldom use the full capacity of horsepower for which he is forced to pay.

The cautious driver thinks hard about exceeding even 50 m.p.h. Ben Kelley, an official of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, notes that "at best, the most recently designed highgrade highways are able to accommodate (off-the-road) vehicles at speeds no higher than 50 m.p.h. The sides of these modern highways are sufficiently clear of rigid obstruction, sharp drop-offs and ditches and similar threats that a straying car will probably come to rest or regain the roadway before it smashes into a hazard, providing that the car is going no faster than 50 m.p.h."

High-powered cars, as opposed to sensibly powered ones, have a faithful and vocal following. In 1970, alarmed by the yearly death toll of 55,000, the DOT proposed a built-in speed limit of 95 m.p.h. But even this mild imposition was opposed by the hot-rod buffs and the automakers, with the DOT backing off. Meanwhile, the auto companies are allowed to build cars that go 100-plus m.p.h.: Vehicles that waste lives and fuel and make the buyer pay money for power that Congress says he shouldn't use. If the full power of these cars shouldn't be used, why is the excess allowed to be there?

The other piece of auto-safety legislation involves the future of air bags. Like an innocent bystander, the air bag issue happened to be waiting for the light when some high-speed congressmen came roaring past, chasing the backers of the seatbelt interlock system. As often happens in hot pursuit, the chasers got their man but not before smashing into a guiltless victim along the way. In August, the House voted for an amendment by Rep. Louis Wyman (R-N.H.) that had the effect of eliminating the interlock. With almost no debate, the House also voted down the air bag, a proven lifesaving device that would be mandatory for 1977 cars. The two systems use different technologies: The interlock is noisy, forces the driver to fiddle with gimmicks and tempts him to be a sneak by deactivating it, whereas the air bag is silent, hidden and acts automatically at only the moment of need: in a crash. The resentment against the mandatory interlock carried over against the mandatory air bag. The issue, instead of being the merits of the air bag, became the question of whether the government can intrude on a citizen's right to know what is best for himself.

It can, of course. The government has intruded with any number of restrictive laws designed for the citizen's "own good," whether the citizen likes it or not. His meat is inspected, his water purified and his milk pasteurized. He must be inoculated against certain diseases before travelling abroad or entering the First Grade. These are public health matters, and what happens on the nation's highways is also a question of public health.

If motorists who object to mandatory air bags could find a way to haul their maimed bodies to hospitals or cemeteries without disturbing the community's peace or finances, then they could drive not only without air bags but without bumpers, windshields, brakes, fenders or any other governmentally imposed constraints.

It is not a surprise that the auto companies are opposing air bags. This is consistent with their long record of accepting safety standards only when they are forced upon them. But it is surprising that the Congress may abandon the air bag exactly when it has so many persuaded of its live-saving potential. The DOT estimates that the annual benefits of the air bags, used with seat belts, would be 15,600 lives and 1,000,000 injuries saved. Such figures are impressive, and ideally they would be sufficient motivation for Congress to act quickly.

Over the years, though, all but a few have become so conditioned to highway slaughter that the annual figure of 55,000 killed has little shock value. If the same number were victims of air crashes — 55,000 a year comes to a daily death toll of a 707 filled with about 150 people — would that be tolerated so casually?

The fate of air bags is to be decided in a Senate-House conference committee. The fear is that in its fervor to impeach the interlock the Congress will also destroy the air bag. In the House debate, air bags were hardly mentioned; their proven performance — noted by such observers as The Wall Street Journal and Allstate Insurance Co. — was ignored. What is needed is for the politicians to belt themselves into place and allow the DOT to proceed under the Motor Vehicle Safety Act to develop the air bag, so that it can be ready by 1977 or 1978. That is a long enough highway death-watch by itself.

A Forum That We'll Miss

By HARRY BRUCE

A day or so after everyone who watched the late news had gone to bed in the sure knowledge that Saturday Night magazine had passed away, its editor Robert Fulford told me things were looking up. There was now perhaps a 1-in-10 chance the magazine would rise from its slab, and live and breath again.

Fulford was going to do everything he could to set the miracle happen, and he has done that before. He has done it during more looming crises, moments of cliff-hanging, frantic searches for angels, desperate appeals to government, and fleetingly sunny reorganizations than anyone cares to remember.

Saturday Nnight was the heroine in the Canadian magazine industry's Perils of Pauline but, this time, nobody rode up to untie the ropes and the train kept on coming.

The aching problems of the magazine had gradually dragged Fulford into the hard world of the businessman, of balance sheets and directors' meetings and troubled nights. Would the dollars ever come in fast enough to get out the next issue, and who among us has ever wanted to be the last editor of an ancient periodical?

"Yesterday," he told me one night earlier this month, "we couldn't meet the payroll." I remembered an old movie in which the hard-boiled, shirt-sleeved, garment manufacturer roars at some idealistic youth, "Yeah, well until you try to meet a payroll, sonny boy you don't know nothin!"

Fulford didn't sound like that. He just sounded tired. He is a writer, an editor, a writers' editor, but somehow he had drifted into a businessman's purgatory.

During all the years that he helped keep Saturday Night from toppling off its tightrope; the thing that hurt him most was the magazine's inability to pay freelance writers promptly. Occasionally, a Saturday Night cheque would bounce, and then his embarrassment was excruciating. In the end, the good cheque always came.

I phoned him a month before the end. One of Saturday Night's glories was that you could say things there that no one else would print, and, this time, I wanted to write a media column to gripe about Macleans' deteriorating treatment of Canadian freelancers.

No, he said, Saturday Night was in no position to knock any other magazine's record with regard to paying writers. And now, of course, it's in no position to publish anything. A lot of things that cry out to be said will just not get said.

People sometimes told me Fulford's Saturday Night was too intellectual, too arty, too far removed from the mainstream of Canadians' daily preoccupations. But the critics were usually editors of other magazines, and no one is more blithely confident of his ability to detect the flaws in one magazint than the editor of another.

I don't believe them. The modern history of American periodicals is a history of mass-circulation magazines going belly-up while "intellectual" and special-interest magazines struggle along or even flourish.

We really need one briskly written general-interest forum for intelligent opinion, informed argument, crafted reporting, personal essays, book and film reviews, and it has to respect its readers enough not to treat them like simpletons, and it has to be national.

That's what Fulford's Saturday Night was, and there wasn't much point in its trying to be anything else.

I think of the disappearance of The Star Weekly just as it became the most exciting weekly in the country. I think of the disappearance of the Globe weekly, which had a style, a voice, a readership of its own. I think of poor old Saturday Night, and a horrible suspicion simmers along in my mind:

Is it possible there's some infinitely complex marriage of economic forces and cultural apathy in Canada, and that it ultimately guarantees that the more intelligent a national magazine becomes the more certain its death will be?

Driver Saves 39, Dies

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Frank Parkhill died Sunday in saving the lives of 39 bus passengers after the vehicle's brakes went out.

"Father was a truckdriver, but I have never seen him drive so well," said his daughter, Gwen, 26.

Jim Norgate, 44, who was sitting opposite Parkhill said the brakes failed on a steep hill 10 miles out of Melbourne.

"As we started to come down, Frank turned to me and said, 'the brakes have gone,'" Norgate said. "He was pumping the pedal but nothing was happening."

"I went to the back of the bus and told the girls to crouch down with their heads between their knees," he said. "Frank was switching down gears and trying to hold it back, but it didn't work. Then he leaned on the horn."

In less than a minute between the brakes failing and the crash, Parkhill:

—Swerved to miss a car pulling out from a curb.

—Cut between a car and a truck making righthand turns.

—Turned a tight corner nearly on two wheels to avoid running into a house.

—Mounted the sidewalk and richocheted off a fence.

—Swerved the bus between two lamp posts.

—Swung back on the road to miss a parked car with four people in it.

—Ripped up four trees on the median strip.

—Missed a narrow bridge.

—Smashed through a safety barrier and leaped a creek.

The bus finally plunged to the bottom of a 20-foot deep ditch, and the impact killed him.

"He had done everything within his power to avoid harming anyone else," a police superintendent said. Parkhill's wife and a 10-year-old girl were injured.

Robbery Said Motive In 6 Deaths

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — "There was no other motive than robbery," says Police Chief Thomas Ormsby of the slaying of six persons in a family bakery.

The bodies of the owner of the Donna Lee Bakery, a clerk and four customers were found in a back room Saturday night. Each had been shot in the head, and the clerk also had been shot in the throat.

The victims' wallets and handbags were missing, and the male victims' trouser pockets were turned inside out. Ormsby said the cash register at the bakery was empty, but police do not know how much money was taken.

Detective Capt. George Berescik, heading the investigation, said Sunday night that he thinks police will "come up with results in the next day or so."

He said three to five persons who were unknown to the victims probably took part in the slayings in this central Connecticut city.

The robbers were either amateurs or maniacs, said Sgt. Henry Crisafulli.

"A pro wouldn't kill that way," he said. "He wants to take money with the least amount of trouble."

Police conducted door-to-door interviews Sunday with people in the largely residential section where the bakery is located. They said a white 1964 Pontiac is believed to have been the getaway car.

PREMIER OPENS POOL

NAKUSP (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett ended his two-week rrovincial tour by opening the $1 million Nakusp Hot Springs project Saturday.

"This is the kind of development we are most interested in," the premier said. "We believe in community development to make this province a better place to live in."

Most of the money for the project came from the provincial government. The pool, fed by hot springs, is adjacent to a park and was built to replace a rudimentary pool about seven miles from this town in the west Kootenay.

The permier said the government "likes to keep this sort of development in the hands of the people."

"Hopefully it will be an example for other villages, towns and cities of the province," he said.

Clamps Sought On Trial Delays

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Law Society has threatened to discipline lawyers who assist clients in playing a "game of delay" with courtroom trial dates.

The society's governing body of benchers disclosed in a recent newsletter that it has received complaints about trial delays in Vancouver county court.

While specific examples were not cited, the newsletter contained references to "instances of repetitive conduct" by accused persons who delay trials and hinder the administration of justice.

The complaint came from Judge William Shultz, senior judge of the county court.

Judge Schultz said that county and provincial courts here have a bad record for instances in which an accused asks for an adjournment because he has dismissed his lawyer.

"The repetition of these instances makes me suspicious," he said. "It doesn't seem to be mere coincidence that this trend has increased in the past two years or so."

He said that the trend seems to coincide with an increase in the number of drug prosecutions.

"The last thing some of these people want is a trial," the judge said.

The society has the power to suspend or disbar lawyers for professional misconduct.

Arctic Gas Fires Moscow Kitchens

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union soon plans to start pumping natural gas from its vast reserves in remote Siberia to the kitchens, factories and power plants of Moscow.

The Soviet press said Sunday the gas would begin flowing within three weeks, marking a major step forward in Russia's crash program to exploit the massive energy and mineral wealth of Siberia.

The official news agency Tass said the breakthrough follows completion of an 1,800-mile pipleine that snakes across 13 Soviet regions and republics.

The Russian press said the relatively clean-burning fuel would play a major role in clearing up air pollution in the Soviet capital and give Moscow's industry a shot in the arm.

The newspaper Vechernaya Moskva said the giant pipeline, built in nine months, would be in operation by next month's anniversary of the Nov. 7, 1917, Russian revolution.

Vechernaya Moskva said the pipeline would have a capacity of 14.5 billion cubic meters of natural gas a year "in the nearest future."

Tass said the natural gas would come from the Medvezhye field in the Tyumen region of northwestern Siberia.

Soviet officials have estimated the region's reserves at 20 trillion cubic yards — a staggering amount able to meet current production needs in the U.S. for years.

The pipeline is expected to ease the concerns of western investors about the ability of Russia to export large quantities of natural gas from the isolated Siberian region.

Lumbermen's Deal Wins Iranian Oil Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Canadian plan to create an integrated wood industry in Iran has benefited from soaring oil prices.

Canadian expertise is helping to set up logging spreads, sawmills, pulp and paper mills, plywood, particle board and liner board plants in an area where none exists.

Gordon S. Charnell and Associates are contributing forestry, engineering, and planning to the project at cost first estimated at about $27 million.

But with upgrading and expansion, the cost is likely to be closer to $40 million. Cost of the whole project may rise to $300 million. Current estimates are $200 million, the company said.

The Vancouver-based Charnell firm entered the project in 1971. Since then the price of crude oil has risen to $14 a barrel from $2.

The Iranians are going for a "Cadillac instead of a Chev" because of their improved fortunes, said Charnell.

SIMILAR TO B.C.

The area for the operations is about 156 square miles of mountainous land near the Caspian Sea and slightly larger than would be the forest base of a similar operation in British Columbia.

The species of trees are different but diameters of logs are comparable. Forest elevations and logging road grades also are similar to B.C. coast conditions.

About 15 Canadian forest experts and their families now are in Iran and more are expected. Their homes, constructed by the Iranian government and Stadler Hurter Ltd. of Montreal, will be by the Caspian.

S. G. Gardiner Engineering Services Ltd. of Vancouver will design a $7.6 million sawmill and a $5.5 million plywood mill — representing a 50 per cent investment in B.C.-originated equipment.

Large Canadian credits have been furnished to help the Canadian companies provide their equipment and expertise but they are no longer needed because of Iranian prosperity.

Credits amounting to $132.5 million formed one of the largest financing packages ever assembled by the Export Development Corp. EDC's part in $82.5 million and the balance of $50 million is being provided by a chartered bank consortium managed by the Bank of Montreal and the Royal Bank of Canada.

IRANIAN BUYER

The buyer is an Iranian government agency — the Industrial Development and Renovation Organization.

Other Canadian companies are also benefitting from the project.

Columbia Trailer Co. Ltd. and Kenworth Canadian Ltd. are supplying a variety of Vancouver-built logging trucks and trailers valued at $2.95 million.

Six B.C. machinery manufacturers have formed a consortium called Camillex to present a unified overseas sales program. They have obtained $1.6 million worth of orders for the Iranian project and expect $1 million more.

Camillex members are Brandson Machinery Ltd., C. A. E. Machinery Ltd., L-M Equipment Ltd., Mainland Foundry and Engineering Ltd., Superior Saw Sales Ltd. and Elworthy and Co. Ltd.

They will supply sawmill machinery such as saws, carriages, edgers and metal detectors. Equipment for conveyor systems is expected to amount a further $1 million.

Royal Trust

The Royal Trust Co. has announced it has reached an agreement in principle with certain major stockholders of the Bank of Lakeland to acquire as much as 100 per cent stock control of the Lakeland, Fla., bank.

The bank's market value was placed at $2.3 million.

Kenneth White, Royal president, said "the acquisition is contingent upon Royal Trust acquiring at least 80 per cent of the bank's stock." A smaller percentage would be unacceptable.

The agreement would still be subject "to the execution of acceptable documentation, the approval of various government agencies and the satisfaction of certain other conditions."

White expected no difficulties in the transaction and said the Lakeland bank would continue operating with the same directors, officers and personnel.

The Bank of Lakeland, serving central Florida, has total assets of $8 million.

Texaco

Texaco Canada Ltd. reports net earnings for the first nine months of 1974 were $43,303,000 or $4.45 a share compared to $39,153,000 or $4.02 per share in the corresponding period for 1973.

Gross income was $537,643,000, compared to $396,456,000 in 1973.

The company reported a softening of product prices in many market areas as well as higher costs and operating expenses partially due to inflationary pressures, had an adverse affect on earnings.

Cominco

Cominco Ltd. reports net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1974, were $70.8 million or $4.17 a share, compared with net earninngs of $29.4 million or $1.74 a share for the same period in 1973.

F. E. Burnet, chairman and chief executive officer of Cominco, said in a statement sales increased to $620.8 million, compared with $350.2 million for the same period last year.

Burnet said that although operations at Trail, Kimberley and Salmo were shut down by a strike in the third quarter, earnings in that period exceeded those of the corresponding period of 1973 because of improved earnings from the United States and other Canadian and overseas operations.

Significant progress has been made towards resolving the 3½ month work stoppage at Trail, Kimberley and Salmo, Burnet said, and when negotiations with the office workers' union are concluded, plant start-up procedures will limit production for the first several weeks.

The Kimberley Local of the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees is seeking its second contract while the Trail local is seeking its first.

The 4,200 Steelworkers employed by Cominco in B.C. settled their contract dispute but will not return to work until ACTE settles.

Rocky Gifts Total $24M

WASHINGTON (WP) — Vice Presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller revealed Saturday that he had made near 200 educational and charitable gifts totalling $24,712,245 over the past 17 years. Among the 16 gifts of $200,000 or more, one of the most unusual was $656,393 to the State of New York. Aides said donations took the form of landscaping, a swimming pool and other improvements to the executive mansion in Albany paid for from Rockefeller's own pocket while governor.

The listings show that Rockefeller sprinkled his gifts liberally — to museums, universities, study groups, religious groups regardless of faith, communities he lived in, schools, and black colleges and other institutions.

The list of contributions was made public one day after Rockefeller divulged that he had agreed to pay the Internal Revenue Service $983,718 in back taxes for the past six years, after a routine audit of his income tax returns caused the IRS to disallow $1.4 million of his deductions.

Rockefeller has been under sharp criticism for a series of personal cash gifts to such former aides and political associates as Henry A. Kissinger and William J. Roinan, and for a book financed by his brother, Laurance, attacking Nelson Rockefeller's 1970 gubernatorial rival, Arthur J. Goldberg.

After releasing the new list, he said in New York Saturday:

"There is nothing wrong, there is nothing illegal and there is nothing immoral, and there is no conflict on interest in anything I've done or that's come out."

In Greenville, S.C., President Ford said he "still has complete faith in Governor Rockefeller's integrity and I believe he will be confirmed."

The charitable contributions list was contained in a letter to the Senate Rules and House Judiciary committees, which haven't yet completed hearings on the nomination. Rockefeller press aides released the list Saturday.

The largest single donation, nearly $6.6 million, went to the Museum of Primitive Art in New York, which Rockefeller founded. Second was $2,563,420 to the Museum of Modern Art in New York, also a family project. Rockefeller's alma mater, Dartmouth, got $1,869,996.

Also listed was $251,766 to the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases. It has since become part of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, where the nominee's wife, Happy, underwent breast surgery last week.

One of the largest single religious gifts was $581,004 to the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York, although Rockefeller is a Christian. But he also gave $151,691 to the Roman Catholic Archbishopric of New York State and $101,293 to the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York City, plus numerous substantial contributions to other Christian groups.

Dr. Martin Luther King's Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta received $132,312, and the NAACP Legal Defence and Educational Fund got $83,792.

The list shows a big batch of contributions, over $80,000, to several public institutions on Mount Desert Isl. and, where his Seal Harbor, Maine, vacation home is located, and $29,596 to Union Church in the Pocantico Hills, N.Y., area where a group of Rockefeller family estates is located.

In universities, Dartmouth led by a wide margin but Princeton ($246,369) and Columbia ($216,436) did well, as did Wellesley ($160,930). Harvard ($73,630) and Vassar ($25,905) trailed.

What the list clearly shows, however, is that Rockefeller's chief interests — aside from his art holdings — lie in the fields of public affairs and politics.

ROCKY'S PALS IN IRS GLARE

WASHINGTON (WP) — With the payment of the additional $903,718 in gift and income taxes he announced Friday, Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller is now apparently even with the federal tax collectors.

But tax experts are still raising a question on the basis of the tax information that Rockefeller has made public so far.

The question has to do, not with Rockefeller's own taxes, but with the taxes of some of the 18 present and former public officials and members of his staff to whom he has acknowledged having made some $1.8 million in gifts since 1957.

Rockefeller apparently paid all his taxes on the gifts; some experts say he may even have paid more than he technically had to. The question is whether the recipients should also have paid, or should have been the ones to pay instead — whether all that $1.8 million was actually in the form of gifts as defined by law, or whether some of it was really extra compensation and thus taxable income to the recipients.

The leading case in the complicated field of federal gift tax law was decided by the Supreme Court 14 years ago. It involved an otherwise obscure Dayton, Ohio, metal company president named Mose Duberstein.

The issue was whether Duberstein owed federal income taxes on a Cadillac gratefully given him by another businessman to whom he had referred some customers. The court ruled 7 to 2 that Duberstein did owe the money, because the gift had been akin to compensation; it had not been given with "detached and disinterested generosity."

The Duberstein case had its comical aspects. Duberstein, defending himself, pointed out at one point that he had not even needed a Cadillac; he already had one, and an Oldsmobile as well. The decision also raised almost as many new questions as it answered old." The dividing line between gifts and compensation is still hard to draw, and one of those things on which experts often disagree.

The law says that if A gives B a gift above a certain minimum amount, A has to pay a federal gift tax on it. The purpose is to keep taxpayers from giving away all their money before death to escape federal estate taxes. If the money is actually a gift as defined by law, B does not have to count it as income and pay income taxes on it.

Harassment Claimed After Union Dues Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — An employee of the Vancouver Resource Board who launched a small-claims action against his union to recover $18 in union dues has asked the B.C. labor relations board to stop alleged harassment by his employer.

Walter Muller said he was threatened with the loss of his job if he does not drop his suit against the B.C. Government Employees Union. His supervisors denied the allegation.

"I consider this situation to be an unwarranted intrusion into my private life, and possibly could be considered contempt of court, aside from being, in my opinion, a crude attempt by the provincial government . . . to muzzle me," Muller says in a letter to the board Sunday.

Muller is suing the union for $18 in union dues, collected in April, May and June of this year when he was a temporary case aide in the human resources department.

Muller is one of about 1,000 temporary employees he says should have received the $125 cash bonus negotiated as part of the union's agreement with the government signed last June.

The union says the cash bonus payment, offered in lieu of a retroactive clause in the contract, was never intended for temporary employees.

Muller contends that the union should repay the three months' worth of dues because it failed to represent the temporary workers' interests. The case is to go to small claims court in December.

FLEA COLLARS FOR HUMANS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Residents desperate to ward off fleas during a week of hot, muggy weather have started a new fad in pop jewellery by wearing the flea collars designed for pets.

"We're selling flea collars here by the ton," said Firmin Summers, general manager of Pet Dealers Supply Co.

"I don't know if we can keep up with the demand if humans compete with Fido for them.

Most store owners attribute the upswing in sales of the $1.98 chemical-filled collars to San Francisco's recent spell of warm, humid weather—the kind of climate that brings out the tiny pests in droves.

But some scientists are worried about the side effects collars may have on human wearers.

"Many collars contain the chemical vapor DDVP which some people are allergic to," said Domenic Grociani of the county health department's environmetal health services.

"It has been known to cause rashes and headaches in humans and hearing loss in dogs."

States-B.C. Session Ends

Justice planners from Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Alaska have gone home following a two-day conference here with their B.C. counterparts.

They resolved to do only one thing: meet again in April in Seattle.

The session, called by the British Columbia justice development commission to discuss mutual concerns and issues, was characterized by organizer David Mead as being designed more to understand one another's problems than work out solutions.

Referred to as a think-tank, it dealt with such subjects as justice systems, law reform aims and planning goals.

Organized crime was also discussed but only in terms of what kind of plannning system should be set up to identify and monitor it.

It was the first time U.S. and B.C. justice planners had met on a formal basis.

Mead, a Vancouver systems analyst and member of the planning division of the justice development commission, said the group has agreed to work onf our major problem ageas between now and April.

They include:

—A joint approach to develop computer simulation models which can be used to show the probably effect of any change in the justice system either through changes in flow or policies.

—An exchange of techniques for long-range planning which would point out and consider social and cultural changes.

—A method to evaluate results of programs developed in the U.S. states and B.C.

—An interchange of technical planning information such as statistical techniques.

Mead said B.C.'s major contribution will likely be in computer simulation models.

"We are much further down the road than the others in using computer simulation techniques," he said.

"We have chosen some of management science technique as our top priorities whereas they've been more concerned with funding administration projects and the day-to-day problems."

Mead said simulation foresees the likely consequences of changes in policy decisions in the system. For example if there is a change in arrest procedures or court or police practices what are the effects throughout the system?

"The facilities we have developed use up to 90 groups of variables and factors," he said. "The program uses the same sort of technology that major industries have been using all the time."

Canucks Beat Leafs, Rangers

Times News Services

"What a trip!" chortled Phil Maloney.

The three little words uttered by the coach of Vancouver Canucks said it all after the National Hockey League club returned home today following its greatest-ever road trip.

It was climaxed by an amazing comeback in Toronto on Saturday night and more surprising 1-0 victory over the Rangers in New York on Sunday for a sweep that propelled Canucks into first place in the Conn Smythe Division.

Embarassed by a 5-3 home-ice loss to St. Louis Blues the previous weekend, Canucks dealt away three players to get four before taking off on a four-game swing.

The trades which brought Garry Monahan, Mike Robitaille, Gerry Meehan and John Grisdale may not be the ultimate cure-all, they didn't hurt. Monahan scored the only goal Sunday in New York while Robitaille was one of the standouts in Saturday's 5-4 victory over the Maple Leafs.

The two weekend results, along with a 1-1 tie in Minnesota and an earlier mid-week victory in St. Louis, marks the first time in the Canucks' five-year history that they have returned unbeaten from their first road trip with three wins and a tie.

Their followers got a first-hand look at Maloney's "new" Canucks on national television. Trailing 4-1 at one stage, the Canucks stunned Toronto with a four-goal barrage in the final period.

They were even better Sunday night when goaltender Gary Smith handed the Rangers their first shutout on home ice in 83 games.

Rangers out-shot Canucks 33-15. Smith, helped greatly by an alert defensive and Maloney's penalty-killers, had all the answers.

Penalties allowed Rangers to bring out their power-play on five occasions, but each time Vancouver was able to hold New York off the scoresheet.

It was a complete turnabout for the Vancouver penalty-killers, who had been burned for five power-play goals in eight chances during their first two games of the season.

Since then, Canucks have allowed only one goal in 21 chances — that was in Toronto when George Ferguson's first of two goals gave Leafs a 2-0 lead. Ferguson made it 3-0 before Bob Dailey finally got the Canucks untracked.

It was 4-1, advantage to Toronto, when they started the third and Vancouver pulled it out on goals by Chris Oddleifson, Tracy Pratt, Chris Bordeleau and Dennis Vervegaert.

The final result prompted Dave Dunn, dealt to Toronto in last week's trading, to comment: "They sure as hell looked like they missed me, didn't they?"

The result snapped a four-game Toronto unbeaten streak and the Leafs bounced back, to some extent, by playing the Sabres to a 5-5 deadlock in Buffalo Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Billy Smith gave the New York Islanders their first shutout in their 161-game NHL history by blanking Washington Capitals 5-0; Montreal Canadiens tied Philadelphia Flyers 2-2; Atlanta Flames whipped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-1; Boston Bruins blanked California Golden Seals 4-0 and Chicago Black Hawks shut out Minnesota 6-0.

Penalties Hurt Cougars As Bombers Salvage Tie

FLIN FLON — Victoria Cougars, said "interested observer" Pat Ginnell, "played very well considering they played only three men against six."

Ginnell's comments obviously intended to single out referee Kelly Fraser as "the sixth man" after Flin Flon Bombers rallied to tie Victoria 5-5 in Sunday's Western Canada Hockey League meeting here.

Penalties to the Cougars played a prominent part in a draw that failed to detract from Victoria's glossy road performance.

Flin Flon scored their five goals while enjoying an edge in manpower, including the game's final pair when Bombers enjoyed a two-man advantage.

Fraser, a Winnipeg referee, dealt out 12 minors to Victoria and only three to Flin Flon, exclusive of six balancing majors and a game misconduct to Cougars' Don Cairns for coming off the bench to become involved in a scuffle.

After Cougars struck for three straight goals to take a 5-3 lead in the third period, the Victoria team took a rash of penalties that allowed Flin Flon a two-man edge for almost six straight minutes.

Jeff McDill and Blair Davidson, with his third of the night, took advantage of the two-man edge to tie the game and only the outstanding work of goaltender Lloyd Saar and the Cougar penalty-killers prevented Flin Flon from taking the lead.

Ginnell, Victoria's coach, served the second of a six-game suspension imposed for taking Cougars off the ice in a game at Medicine Hat last week.

Ginnell expressed delight with Cougars' play, particularly with the efforts of Saar, defenceman Rick Lapointe and Tim Williams, and forward Jim Gustafson, Mel Bridgman and Peter Morris.

Williams scored two goals while Morris, Gustafson and Dan Lucas added the others.

Saar blocked 30 shots while Flin Flon's Roger Swanson stopped 36.

Cougars, who face the Bombers here again tonight, now have won three, tied two and lost but one on their current 10-game trip.

The team heads for Winnipeg for a game Tuesday, plays in Brandon on Thursday and winds up the gruelling grind in Lethbridge on Friday.

Russia's Olympic Bid Believed 'Sure Winner'

VIENNA (CP) — The Soviet Union, which has had 523 champions since it entered the Olympics in 1952, is making a highpowered bid for the 1980 Games.

Los Angeles is the only other city that will be bidding for the event Tuesday before the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

Despite reports that the Soviet Union is a sure winner, Lord Killanin of Ireland, president of the IOC, says that both Moscow and Los Angeles will "be listened to and given the same treatment and consideration."

The Soviets lost out to Montreal for the 1976 Games. If they are successful Tuesday, it will mark the first time a Communist country has been the site of the Olympics.

Moscow has 69 stadiums, 230 gymnasiums, 22 swimming pools and more than 100 soccer fields. The largest stadium—the Central Lenin—seats 103,000 and is part of the Luzhniki Sports Complex.

The arena where the Team Canada '74-Soviet Union hockey games were played is adjacent to the main stadium.

The complex also contains several tennis courts and gyms for basketball and volleyball.

The second largest stadium in Moscow is the Dynamo which can seat 56,000, while Lokomotiv Stadium has 43,000 seats.

The city also has the rowing canal which was the site of the 1973 European championships and can accommodate 55,000 spectators.

Still, the Soviets say they plan to build a few more facilities if the IOC approves their bid. Among planned installations are a 10,000-seat velodrome, an archery site and a facility for the swimming and diving events.

Their Olympic village would be in the forest of Izmailovo Park, one of Moscow's most picturesque districts.

Plans call for a complex of multi-storey buildings with separate sections for men and women and a number of administrative buildings. It is expected that the village would accommodate 15,000 athletes.

In another Olympic development, the press committee of the IOC has rejected the press accommodation plans of the organizers of the 1976 Montreal Games because the prices were too high.

The Montreal Games organizing committee was asked by the press committee to present a new report in February following six hours of meetings on the eve of the 75th IOC congress.

Eskimos Take One-Point Lead; Lions Beaten in Final Seconds

By The Canadian Press

The Western Football Conference race still is tight after a weekend in which all five teams saw action, but Edmonton Eskimos are sure of a playoff spot.

The Eskimos ended Winnipeg Blue Bombers' home-field winning streak at five games Sunday when Dave Cutler, aided by a strong wind, provided almost all of the scoring with five field goals in a 17-10 decision.

The victory gave Edmonton 17 points, one more than Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions who are tied for second place.

The loss left the Bombers in fourth place, three points behind Edmonton.

Calgary Stampeders, out of playoff contention, upset the Eastern Conference Toronto Argonauts 21-18 Sunday in Calgary.

In Vancouver Saturday night, the Roughriders drove downfield for a touchdown with five seconds remaining to defeat the Lions 24-21.

Saskatchewan has one game left while the other four WFC teams each have two to go in the 16-game regular schedule.

The final Saskatchewan drive started on the Rider 37-yard line with 51 seconds remaining.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster used five plays, the longest one a 56-yard pass to wide receiver Bob Pearce, ending with a touchdown dive by George Reed.

Other Saskatchewan touchdowns were scored by Pearce and Tom Campana. Brian Berg converted all three and added a field goal.

Don Moorhead, Lou Harris and Munroe Eley scored touchdowns for the Lions who had built up quarter leads of 7-0, 14-7 and 21-7. Ivan MacMillan kicked three converts for the Lions.

The Stampeders won their second game in a row under rookie quarterback Joe Piscarcik as Howard Starks intercepted twice in the fourth quarter to stop Argonaut offensive threats.

Tom Forzani, who took a 11-yard pass from Piscarcik, and Willie Burden, on a two-yard plunge, scored touchdowns for Calgary. Cyril McFall converted both and kicked field goals from four and 39 yards. He added a 27-yard single to round out the scoring.

Toronto's only touchdown was scored on a 74-yard pass from Mike Rae to split end Chuck Herd in the first quarter. Zenon Andrusyshyn got the other points with field goals of 28, 16 and 22 yads and a convert.

Cutler, whose field goal kicking was aided by a 25-mile-an-hour wind, connected from 27, 34, 49, 23, and 56 yards away. The only other Edmonton points were provided by a safety conceded by Bombers kicker Walt McKee.

DAVE CUTLER
. . . five field goals

The game's only touchdown was scored by Bomber defensive back Paul Williams who fell on a loose ball in the Edmonton end zone following a short punt by Edmonton quarterback Tom Wilkinson. The punt from the end zone came down at the Edmonton five yard line and after a number of players tried to retrieve the ball, it ended up in the end zone.

McKee converted the touchdown and added a third-quarter field goal to complete the scoring.

Clubs' New Pilot Treated to Draw

Times News Services

Winnipeg Clubs couldn't treat their new coach to victory, but at least they didn't lose.

Murray (Muzz) McPherson, 37, a scout for Kansas City Scouts of the National Hockey League, took over as coach of Winnipeg's Western Canada Hockey League team Sunday and the Clubs "treated" their new pilot to a 3-3 tie with New Westminster Bruins.

McPherson previously coached Winnipeg Monarchs of the Manitoba Junior League and guided Portage Terriers to the Canadian tier-two championship two seasons ago. He takes over from Gord Pennell, who resigned last week because of the pressure of his sporting goods business.

A peppery individual, McPherson promptly had a hand in bringing a new goalie into camp. The Clubs announced they traded Kevin Marinos, an 18-year-old centre who played with Yorkton Terriers of the Saskatchewan Junior League last season, to Kamloops Chiefs in exchange for Tim Priestly, a 19-year-old goalie.

Kamloops obviously intends to go with Mark Earp as their first-string goalie, and he responded Sunday by giving the Chiefs their first shutout since being admitted to the WCHL. Earp made only 18 stops as Chiefs overwhelmed Calgary Centennials 9-0.

Elsewhere, Stan Jensen and Brian Sutter each scored twice as the Broncos treated 4,033 Lethbridge fans to a 6-2 victory over Saskatoon Blades and Medicine Hat Tigers salvaged a weekend split by clipping Regina Pats 5-4. Saskatoon beat the Tigers 4-2 Saturday while, on the same day, Brandon Wheat Kings defeated the then-coachless Clubs 5-3.

See scoring, standings on Page 13.

Canadian Teams Out of Running

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Three straight semi-final loses have dropped Canada's women out of contention for a top spot at the world volleyball championships. The best they now can hope to finish is seventh.

Thursday they dropped a 3-2 decision to Russia, winning 15-11 and 15-13, but losing 15-1, 15-7 and 15-3 in the best-of-five match.

That was followed by straight-game losses Friday and Saturday to Poland and Romania. Against Poland the women lost 15-9, 15-11, 15-9 and against Romania it was 15-9, 15-2, 15-8.

The Canadian men's team is faring even worse.

After losing two of three matches since Thursday, it now is faced with battling Puerto Rico, the dominican Republic, Egypt and Italy for 19th place.

Als Cinch First Place in East

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal Alouettes dumped Ottawa Rough Riders 28-0 Sunday to clinch first place in the Eastern Football Conference.

The slumping Alouettes had been labelled underdogs against the so-called revitalized defending Grey Cup champions.

A win by the Riders would have tied them for first place with the Als. But the Riders didn't even see the Montreal end of the field until the dying seconds of the third quarter.

Montreal quarterback Jimmy Jones threw a 27-yard pass to Johnny Rodgers late in the first quarter for the Als' first touchdown and Jones ran 25 yards in third quarter for the second touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, defensive back Dickie Harris took the ball that Ottawa running back Kerry Marbury didn't want and romped 45 yards unmolested into the Rider end zone.

Marbury had caught a first-down pass from Jerry Keeling and what followed probably will be called the strangest play of the season.

Marbury fell after catching the pass, but he wasn't touched by any player. Thinking the play dead, which it would have been under U.S. rules, import Marbury attempted to hand the ball to a bewildered referee. The referee wouldn't take the ball because the play still was in progress, so Marbury threw it to the ground and walked away.

Harris scooped up the ball and tore down the sidelines into the Rider end zone for a touchdown.

Don Sweet converted all three touchdowns and added two field goals and a single to round out the Montreal scoring.

"Twenty-eight to damn nothing," was how ecstatic Montreal coach Marv Levy described the victory.

"I don't think it was necessarily an easy win but our guys played a super game. Our defence was tough all the time and the offence played great."

Montreal running back Steve Ferrughelli picked up 101 yards along the ground for Montreal to break the 1,000-yard mark this season, the first time for him in his football career.

The charging Montreal defence held the Riders to 32 yards krushing and 103 yards in the air. Montreal got 203 yards rnshing and 116 through passing.

Montreal had 20 first downs compared with nine for Ottawa.

Rodgers was Montreal's leading receiver, picking up 53 yards on three catches while Jim Foley led Ottawa with 29 yards on one reception.

Ottawa's top receiver, Rhome Nixon, only caught two passes for 18 yards.

Jones was good on 10 of 18 passes while Ottawa quarterbacks threw 10 of 27 passes successfully. Rick Cassatta completed three of 11 in the first half for 24 yards and Keeling hit on seven of 16 for 79 yards in the second half. Cassata also threw the other Montreal interception.

Only Cards Hold Perfect Hand

By The Canadian Press

St. Louis Carlinals became the only undefeated team in the National Football League when Minnesota Vikings and New England Patriots were knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten Sunday.

Quarterback Jim Hart sparked the Cardinals to a 31-13 lead against Houston Oilers early in the fourth quarter. St. Louis withstood two one-yard touchdown runs by Houston's George Amundson for a 31-27 victory.

Hart capitalized on a pair of Oiler fumbles and threw touchdown passes of six and 40 yards to Earl Thomas in a 1:32 minute span of the second quarter to lead the Cards.

Meanwhile, Detroit Lions dropped Minnesota from the list of the unbeatens, upsetting the Vikings 20-16, while New England lost 30-28 to Buffalo Bills.

Elsewhere in the NFL, Baltimore Colts whipped New York Jets 35-20, New Orleans Saints upset Atlanta Falcons 13-3, Dallas Cowboys beat Philadelphia Eagles 31-24, Pittsburgh Steelers edged Cleveland Browns 20-16, Washington Redskins defeated New York Giants 24-3, Miami Dolphins slipped past Kansas City Chiefs 9-3, Denver Broncos defeated San Diego Chargers 27-7, Los Angeles Rams topped San Francisco '49ers 37-14 and Oakland Raiders beat Cincinnati Bengals 30-27.

Green Bay Packers face the Bears at Chicago tonight.

FINALLY BEAT VIKINGS

Bill Munson was the big man for the Lions, completing 22 of 32 passes for 276 yards. Ten of his passes were caught by wide receiver Ron Jessie. Detroit's victory was its first over the Vikings in 14 meetings going back to 1967.

After New England's Sam Cunningham raced 75 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage, Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson threw touchdown passes to Paul Seymour and O.J. Simpson within the next 11 minutes to put Buffalo in front, and New England never drew even.

James Harris in his first start at quarterback for the Rams passed for three touchdowns and ran for another. He completed 12 of 15 passes for 276 yards.

A one-yard plunge by Miami fullback Larry Csonka with 17 seconds remaining beat the Chiefs.

Oakland took over the ball at midfield with no time outs left and 1:36 on the clock. Ken Stabler guided the Raiders downfield masterfully, and Charlie Smith capped the drive with a one-yard scoring scamper with eight seconds remaining.

Bobby Scott, given the starting nod at quarterback when New Orleans John North benched Archie Manning during the week, tossed a 36-yard scoring vass to Paul Seal for the only touchdown of the game as the Saints upset Atlanta for their first victory in 19 games on the road.

Pittfburgh struggled past the Browns as quarterback Joe Gilliam completed five of 18 pass attempts for the Steelers. Two second-half field goals by Roy Gerela were the difference.

Veteran Sonny Jurgensen threw three touchdown passes to pace the Redskins, who took advantage of frequent New York mistakes, including a punt which was blocked by Mike Hull.

Dallas snapped a four-game losing streak by beating the Eagles. Roger Staubach's one-yard touchdown run midway through the fourth quarter was the margin of victory.

Baltimore's Lydell Mitchell set an NFL record by carrying the ball 40 times, one more than O. J. Simpson's standard set last year. He gained 156 yards and scored one touchdown in leading the Colts to their first victory of the season.

Running back Floyd Little scored one touchdown and set up another by galloping 72 yards with a short pass to lead Denver past San Diego.

Quick Quebec Blast Keeps Racers Down

By The Canadian Press

Quebec Nordiques didn't take long to put the expansion Indianapolis Racers in their place in a World Hockey Association game Sunday night.

The Nordiques scored twice in a six-second span and defeated the Racers 4-1.

Alain Caron scored at 8:02 of the first period and Serge Bernier added what turned out to be the winner from the faceoff that followed at 8:08.

Rejean Houle and Dale Hoganson had the other Quebec goals. Ron Walters scored for Indianapolis late in the third period.

Quebec's Michel Parizeau and Indianapolis goalie Ed Dyck drew double minors for their scuffle in the second period.

It was the third successive defeat for the expansion club, which has yielded 11 goals while scoring only four times.

Vancouver Blazers, who had gone down to defeat in their first three games of the new season, finally found the winning touch.

They broke loose in the final stages at Vancouver to chalk up a 3-1 decision over Chicago Cougars. Blazer veteran Johnny McKenzie scored a power-play goal to break a 1-1 deadlock after Chicago's Bob Liddington drew a hooking penalty with less than two minutes remaining.

In Sunday's other games, Toronto Toros edged Michigan Stags 4-3 and Cleveland Crusaders tied Phoenix Roadrunners 4-4.

On Saturday, New England Whalers nudged Michigan 2-1, Cleveland dropped Minnesota Fighting Saints 3-1, and San Diego Mariners trounced Houston Aeros 6-2.

Michigan goalie Gerry Desjardins kept the Stags in their Sunday game with Toronto until Wayne Dillon broke a 3-3 tie with a little less than two minutes to play. Desjardins finished with 43 saves.

Former Czechoslovakian national star Vaclav Nedomansky scored his first goal as a Toro.

Al McDonough's three goals helped Cleveland build an early 4-0 lead, but Phoenix came back to salvage a tie on goals by Michel Cormier, John Gray, Don Borgeson and Murray Keogan.

TROJANS REACH FINAL

VANCOUVER — Renfrew Trojans defeated Vancouver Blue Bombers 27-23 at Empire Stadium Sunday to advance to the B.C. Junior Big Four Football League playoff final against Vancouver Meralomas next Sunday.

Trojans led 24-4 at half time but had to withstand a late Bomber rally in the fourth quarter to gain victory.

Brian Davis, Darryl Snow and Hank Sacilotto scored touchdowns and Brian McAdam kicked two conversions, two field goals and a single for Trojans.

And for Bombers, Gary Graham, Jim Harris and Brian Moody scored touchdowns and Moody also booted a field goal, a convert and a single.

In Juvenile playoff games, Lomas defeated Richmond 16-4 while Surrey blanked Renfrew 26-0.

Farmers, Timbermen Reach Juvenile Final

Oak Bay Farmer Construction and Cowichan Timbermen advanced to the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League playoff final with sudden-death semi-final victories Sunday.

Farmers had the toughest time, eking out a 9-7 win over Saanich Hornets at Royal Athletic Park.

Scott Woodburn scored the lone touchdown for Oak Bay while Rob Cowan supplied the balance of points with a field goal.

Ed Murray scored all Hornet points with two field goals and a single.

Timbermen, on the other hand, hammered visiting James Bay Athletic Association Mustangs, 27-2.

The final is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

NewcombeWins

SYDNEY (Reuter) — John Newcombe of Australia beat Texan Cliff Richey in straight sets Sunday to win the $50,000 Australian indoor tennis title. Newcombe triumphed 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 in a two-hour match.

TIGERS TRIM VAMPS IN BANTAM PLAYOFF

Brad Leason scored two touchdowns and kicked two converts Sunday to lead Juan de Fuca Tigers to a 33-0 victory over Saanich Vampires at Cedar Hill Park in the south division semi-final of Vancouver Island Bantam Football League playoffs.

Tigers now meet Oak Bay Invaders in the divisional final at 1 p.m. Sunday in the same park. The winner will face the north division winner (either Cowichan or Courtenay) in the Island final, Nov. 3 in Centennial Stadium.

Gordy Reeckie also scored two TDs for Tigers and Mike Phew added another major.

Yorath Dropped From B.C. Team

Rugby's "bad boy" Cliff Yorath has had his fingers rapped by the B.C. selectors.

The big-kicking Yorath, who last season attracted the attention of B.C. Lions coach Eagle Keys and was given a place-kicking trial by the Canadian Football League club, has been dropped from the B.C. squad to play Tonga in Victoria Wednesday night.

Yorath wasn't in the starting XV — Gillie Greig of Oak Bay Wanderers got the standoff-half berth — but the former Welsh international reserve, who plays for Castaways, was named as one of the spares. He was cut from the squad Sunday night after failing to turn up for a training session.

Mel Reeves of University of British Columbia Thunderbirds replaces Yorath in the reserves with Blais McDonald of Castaways and Dave Ahearne of UBC also being added as extra spares.

The number of Vancouver Island players in the starting lineup dropped to seven Sunday when prop Casey Walt of James Bay Athletic Association was forced to pull out because of an ankle injury. He was replaced by Rick Peck of Vancouver Ravens.

Wednesday night's match — at 7 at Royal Athletic Park — will be the first of two in Canada for the Tongans, who are on their way home after a nine-game tour of Britain. The South Sea Islanders, who were beaten 26-7 by Wales in Cardiff Saturday to finish with one win and eight losses in Britain, end their visit here with a match against Canada's national team in Vancouver this Saturday.

Pat's Kicks Hurt

Cowichan got some big kicking from Pat Simmons Sunday and shocked Castaways 15-3 in a Victoria Rugby Union First Division match at Carnarvon Park.

Simmons booted three penalty goals and converted a try scored by centre Wes Thomas and the under-strength Castaways side could manage only a penalty goal by forward Mike Walsh.

James Bay Athletic Association, the Victoria Union's defending league and playoff champion which has yet to play a league match, travelled to Vancouver and was edged 25-18 by Ravens. Chris Mills and Rod Fiddick scored tries for James Bay while standoff-half Barry Robbins kicked two conversions and two penalty goals.

Rookie Makes It

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Terry Diehl staged one of the biggest upsets this season on the professional golf tour when he finished with a one-stroke victory Sunday over veteran Mike Hill in the San Antonio-Texas Open.

It was the last individual championship on the tour this season. He had to win $1,100—larger than any check he had received as a professional—to retain his card as a full-fledged member of the tour.

"I almost didn't come," he said. "Week after week of getting beat up and missing the cut and failing to qualify.

"I was just so depressed. I figured I'd lost my card and have to fight the mini-tours next year and then try to qualify in the school again."

He had attempted to play in 41 tournaments this season, failed to qualify 17 times, missed the cut nine times, and finished only five events. He had won $1,900 in official money and hadn't cashed a cheque since July.

And then he won $25,000 Sunday from the total purse of $125,000.

His final round 71 gave him a 19-under-par total of 269 and a full year's exemption from qualifying.

Diehl's three-round total of 198, the best 54-hole score on the tour this season, gave him a four-stroke lead going into the final round.

He blew that and had to scramble to match par on the first nine holes, dropped back into a four-way tie for the lead with a bogey on 10, then rallied.

Hill, a winner here in 1972, had a closing 68 and 270 total.

Three Records for Clark

VANCOUVER — Clark Vandermye of the Vancouver Dolphins Club set three of six national age-class records established at the weekend during a two-day provincial "A" class swim meet at Percy Norman Pool.

Swimming in the 11-and-12-yearold bracelet, Vander-mye snapped records in the 400-metre individual medley on Saturday as well as the 200-metre breaststroke and 400-metre freestyle events Saturday.

Two other Dolphins set 11-and-12-year-olds girls' standards Saturday — Lisa Borsholt in the 200-metre breaststroke and Shelley Baldwin in the 400-metre freestyle.

The other record-setter Saturday was Tatjana Oswald of Vancouver Pacific Swim Club in the 50-metre butterfly event for 10-year-olds.

Swimmers from the Victoria Flying "Y" club chalked up four victories during the meet, first in a series of eight scheduled this winter to tune B.C. swimmers for the Pan-American Games in 1975 and the '76 Olympics.

Nick Borrelly notched two of the wins in the 13-and-14-year-old class. He won the 200-metre backstroke Sunday and the 200-metre individual medley on Saturday, when he also placed second in the 200-metre freestyle.

Alison Noble just missed setting a national record by a fifth of a second while winning the 200-metre backstroke for 13-and-14-year-old girls on Sunday.

Judy Newman collected a victory in the 100-metre breastroke for 15-to-17-year-olds Sunday with a time faster than the winner of the corresponding senior event.

Bill Hope finished second in the 200-metre individual medley and backstroke events for 15-to-17-year-olds. He tied clubmate Bill Noble in the backstroke race.

Paul Sparrow was the other runner-up, just missing a win in the 400-metre freestyle event for 10-and-under competitors.

Patti Gilker collected a third in the 11-and-12-year-olds 100-metre backstroke Sunday.

Sandra Rallies On Closing Holes

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sandra Palmer, shooting a final-round 71, came back from a two-stroke deficit on the final two holes Sunday and beat Kathy McMullen by one shot in a $35,000 Ladies' Professional Golf Association's tournament.

Miss Palmer, who birdied the 17th, hit her tee shot to the green on the 170-yard 18th hole and then two-putted from 15 feet for a par after Miss McMullen hit a sand trap and took a bogey four.

The 72-72-71—215 earned $5,000 for Miss Palmer. Miss McMullen had a 72-72-72—216 to win $3,750.

Gerda Boykin of Monroe, Tex., had a 73-75-69—217 to tie for third with Sharon Miller of Marshall, Mich., who shot a 72-72-73—217.

JoAnne Carner increased her new single-season money record to $86,669 by earning $950 after tying for 10th. She shot a 75-73-72—220.

A final round of 72 gave Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., a 219 total, four strokes behind the winner. She earned $1,365. A 75 Sunday gave Jocelyn Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., a 223 total, good for $241.

Canadians Beaten

TIJUANA, Calif. (AP)—South Korea defeated Canada, 15-4, 15-3, 15-2, in a men's match at the eighth world volleyball championship Saturday. Poland beat Canada, 15-9, 15-2, 15-8, in a women's match.

Champs' Invitational Honors to Cedar Hill

Cedar Hill has won the first annual Zone Six invitational Tournament of Champions at Nanaimo Golf Club by seven strokes over Uplands.

Victoria junior champion Jim Rutledge, a member of both Cedar Hill and Uplands, chose to play for Cedar Hill and led the team to victory with a 77 for 18 holes, tieing Fred Worthington of Cedar Hill and Ron Hungle of Nanaimo for low-gross honors.

Competing the Cedar Hill team were Gordie Rands with 80 and Mike Cook with 85.

The second-place Uplands team was comprised of Al Brown (79), Robin Burrell (80), Jeff Howell (80) and Russ Reynolds (87).

To qualify for the invitational, the 55 golfers, representing 11 clubs from Vancouver Island, had to have won a tournament or have been runners-up.

Mining in B.C.—today and tomorrow

In 1874, B.C. got a Ministry of Mines. In 1974, we thought it was time for a few changes. Some have already taken place. Some will happen over the next several months. These, we believe will benefit the mining community and all the people of the province.

Prospector's Assistance Act—added provisions. There has been extraordinary response to the updating of the old grubstake provisions. Prospector's Assistance offers up to $4,000 in government grants for exploration; bonuses when geological studies are made and diamond drilling is done; and the opportunity for part-ownership in developments. Copies of the Act and application forms are available at Provincial Mining Recorder offices and from the Director of Prospector's Assistance in Victoria.

Majors in Mining—a new kind of schooling. Under the Prospector's Assistance Act, courses in mineral exploration techniques will be organized throughout the province. This training will qualify B.C. men and women to receive cash grants for prospecting activities. The Rossland Mining School already provides training for miners. More will be done in other areas.

Claim staking—the new way. On March 1, 1975, a new Modified Grid System will take effect in B.C. MGS is a far simpler method of locating and recording mineral claims. It will encourage the work of prospectors. MGS virtually eliminates conflicting claims and speeds up administration. A full explanation of the new Modified Grid System will be available shortly in booklet form.

The six-week halt—a pause for change. Between January 15 and February 28, 1975, there will be a Moratorium on claim-staking in the province. This will provide for the updating of records and for the preparation of new maps. The Moratorium will permit the change-over to the new system without confusion.

Details of all these changes will be publicized fully before they are put into effect. Meanwhile, we welcome your comments and questions, by writing to the Department of Mines & Petroleum Resources, Victoria, B.C.

Deadlock Boosts Nixons

Victoria Nixons Trucking gained sole possession of first place and Juan de Fuca Gulls moved into a tie for second spot as the two South Island Junior "B" Hockey League teams played to a 3-3 deadlock Sunday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Two other league teams fared badly in interlocking action against members of the North Island League. Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking dropped a 7-5 decision Sunday to host Nanaimo and Saanich Braves were beaten 8-6 Saturday by Timbermen in Port Alberni.

Kevin Killington gave Gulls the tie with a goal at 18:32 of the third period. Ron Hope and Steve Smith were the other Juan de Fuca marksmen.

Norm Allen scored twice for Victoria and Robbie Wilson added a single.

Mike Forrest(3), Mart Coulombe and Jim Calder scored for Lake Cowichan.

Saanich goals were scored by Rob Coldwell, Andy Wallace, Perry Carrigan, Mike Shemilt, Brian Moroney and Tom Tillotson.

Factory Team Shares Glory With Canadian

Times News Services

Italy's Lancia automotive factory has jumped into the lead in the world rally championship race with a convincing one-two finish in the Rideau Lakes Rally, but Canadian champion Walter Boyce has grabbed the lion's share of glory.

Boyce, of Ottawa, finished third in the two-day event that ended Saturday at Smiths Falls, Ont., with 307.77 penalty points. These represent one point for each minute required to complete the high-speed closed stages of the rally that covered 1,200 miles of eastern Ontario's backroads and logging trails.

His third place, with England's Stewart Gray filling in as navigator for Doug Woods — rally-master for this event — was accomplished despite the fact their Toyota Celica was running with a small engine.

A larger, more powerful twin-cam engine had been promised by the factory in Japan, but it did not arrive in time for the rally.

First place went to the Italian team of Sandro Munari and Mario Mannucci in a sleek Lancia Stratos, a car specially-built for competition driving. Their points total was 294.53. Second were Simo Lampinen of Finland and John Davenport of England in another factory Lancia, a Beta coupe, with 296.84.

ELSEWHERE in auto racing, David Pearson won his seventh major event of the season and Richard Petty used a third-place finish in the American 500 at Rockingham, N.C., to clinch his fifth U.S. stock car driving championship . . . Pearson picked up $15,850 by edging Cale Yarborough in the hotly-contested race . . . Petty was in the running until his spun out with only 60 miles to go . . . The spinout cost him two laps . . . At Mt. Pocono, Pa., A. J. Foyt won the sprint car feature and Duane Carter took the companion race for midget cars Sunday in the inaugural World Series of Auto Racing . . . The $200,000 series for the 12 top drivers in the U.S. Auto Club will wind up with Indianapolis and late-model stocks April 13.

THORBURN CAPTURES NATIONAL CUE TITLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Favored Cliff Thorburn, a Victoria native now living in Vancouver, defeated Julien St. Denis of Hull, Que., 13-11 to win the Canadian snooker championship after an unpredictable final that started early Saturday evening and wound up up in the early hours Sunday.

Thorburn, who trailed St. Denis 10-5 at one stage of the best-of-25 series, won $1,500 while St. Denis picked up $800.

Both players resorted to a "safe" style in the late stages. As a result games took about an hour to play rather than the customary 20 minutes.

Dark Returns

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley, owner of the world champion Oakland Athletics, said Saturday that Alvin Dark had accepted his offer to manager the team again during the 1975 baseball season.

Finley told the Associated Press that Dark had agreed to a one-year contract "at a substantial increase in salary."

Unbeaten Vikings, Boxers Right on Collision Course

There should be plenty of pressure on both teams Tuesday night when University of Victoria Vikings take on London Boxing Club at 7:30 at Royal Athletic Park.

The clubs, top two in the Vancouver Island Soccer League, meet in a Premier-Division match that could have a big bearing on first place.

Vikings have five wins and a tie for 11 points after blanking Prospect Lake 4-0 Saturday at Athletic Park.

And the Boxers, who have a game in hand, are one point behind with five straight wins in five starts, the latest a 2-0 victory over Powell River Villas Sunday at Topaz Park.

It was the fourth shutout in five games for goalkeeper Kjeld Brodsgaard, who also set up the second goal with a long kick upfield to winger Dean Stokes. And it was the second goal of the game for Stokes, who scored on a penalty just after the interval following a scoreless first half.

In Sunday's other Premier-Division games, Oak Bay got a sceond-half penalty goal from Jos De Bruin to force a 1-1 draw with undefeated Nanaimo City, Cosmopolitan Royals edged Vic West 2-1 on two goals by George Hyne and Gorge Molsons, led by Brent Russell with two goals, downed Duncan Powel's Men's Wear 5-1.

Sandpipers on Top

Sandpipers could manage only a 1-1 draw with Mariners Saturday but the one point was enough to earn Sandpipers first place in the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association.

Sandpipers had been tied with Oak Bay before Saturday's league games but the Bays were toppled 4-1 by Pirates.

In the second division, Barbara Brown scored five goals to lead Castaways to a 6-0 win over Rebels Gold. Heather Benge was the other scorer.

And in other second-division games, Rebels Red and Sanderlings tied 2-2, Evergreens nipped Sailors 1-0 and Hobbitts and University of Victoria Vagabonds battled to a 1-1 draw.

FAVORED BIRDS TAKE CANADA WEST CROWN

CALGARY — Powerful University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, as expected, won two more games on the weekend to carry off the Canada West University Athletic Association rugby championship.

The Vancouver students, who defeated University of Victoria Vikings 17-6 in a tournament game played recently on the Coast, downed University of Calgary 16-6 and University of Alberta 18-12 to take the title.

Vikings, who won the title last year but came here badly under-strength after bowing to UBC, defeated Alberta 30-8 but went down 17-3 to Calgary. And in the other match played, Alberta beat Calgary 18-12.

Shawnigan Leading Independent Parade

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School defeated St. Michael's University School 18-6 Saturday to take over first place in the B.C. Independent Schools' Rugby League.

It was the second straight victory for Shawnigan, which got tries from Lance Osler, Rob Hearn and Rick Millard and three conversions from Ian Hyde-Lay. Ed MacAuley scored a try, converted by Reg Moore for St. Michael's.

Brentwood College got tries from Bruce McKinnon, Jamie Martin and Rick Joubert and two conversions and two penalty goals from Brad Pettinger to beat St. Georges of Vancouver 22-10.

It was the second loss in a row for St. Georges, which managed only one try by Brad Johnston and two penalty goals kicked by Andrew Bilboy.

In Saturday's other games, St. Michael's and Shawnigan Lake fought to an 8-8 second-division tie and the St. Michael's under-16 team crushed Shawnigan 40-0.

Benny in Pain But No Stroke

BENNY
. . . no stroke

LOS ANGELES — Jack Benny was in "very good" condition today after he was admitted to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for observation and tests during the weekend.

Benny, 80, who was to perform at the Neiman-Marcus Japanese Fortnight Ball in Dallas Saturday, flew here after a spokesman said he was found "in extreme pain" by a hotel employee who went to the comedian's dressing room to tell him it was time to go on stage.

Benny was examined by two doctors at his hotel room and ordered hospitalized over his protests. They said he had suffered a mild stroke.

However, doctors at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, where Benny was taken in a private car, said Benny was suffering from an unconfirmed illness, "definitely not a stroke."

Feraut declined it.

ATLANTA — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, defeated in a Democratic primary run-off for governor that left him about $320,000 in debt, is finding contributions hard to come by in his effort to pay off some impatient creditors.

"Several of these loans right now are really pushing me," said Maddox Sunday. "I got costs from an advertising agency still in excess of $50,000 causing immediate concern."

"The fund-raising is coming terribly, terribly slow," said Maddox. "We still owe in excess of a quarter-million dollars."

Shortly after his defeat by Democratic nominee George Busbee in the run-off primary for governor Sept. 13, Maddox announced that he was about $320,000 in debt.

He said he owed about $80,000 to an advertising agency and that the rest of the money was owed to banks.

BALTIMORE — Some of the two-week-old Rohrer quintuplets have been placed on three-hour feeding schedules, a step which hospital officials say is very encouraging.

Russell and Sandra were placed on the new schedule Sunday, and were fed milk formula every three hours. Two of their sisters, Belinda and Jennifer, received the formula every two hours.

The fifth quint, Michelle, was given smaller amounts of formula every two hours in an effort to build up the water level in her body. She also continued to receive intraveneous feedings.

"This certainly looks encouraging," hospital spokeswoman Terry Cap said Sunday of the new feeding schedule. She said premature babies such as the quints are usually kept in the hospital until they can feed every four hours.

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. — Texas billionaire Ross Perot, a graduate of naval academy, lost more than pride Saturday when the midshipmen went down to air force in a football clash. He lost money.

Perot had a wager with the Colorado cadets that if the middies got sunk he'd pay up with vacations for 40 air force students and their dates.

Navy lost 19-16, and the cadets, whose names were chosen from a barrel during halftime, are trying to decide where to go.

But Perot's loss was also navy's loss — the several hundred midshipmen who entered the wager will have to get haircuts.

EL PASO, Tex — Earl Richert, editor-in-chief of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, says it's time for Americans to begin laughing again. He predicted a brighter economic outlook for the country.

In a weekend speech to the New Mexico Press Association, Richert also predicted a landslide victory for the Democrats in next month's elections.

The Grape Escape From Overweight

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — William (Big Bill) Leverton was never able to squeeze into anything until he became one-third the man he used to be.

"I couldn't go anywhere. I didn't fit. Doors, chairs — the world around me was too small," said Leverton, 57, after shedding 417 pounds in 31 months.

"I look in a mirror and it's like looking at a stranger," said the six-foot-three Leverton, checking in at 223 pounds last week.

Leverton, a Michigan highway department inspector, weighed 640 pounds on April 3, 1972, and was told by his employer to reduce.

"My job was at stake," said Leverton, who has set a final weight goal of 200 pounds.

Leverton said he tried many methods to lose weight—even hypnosis.

"Under hypnosis I drank 12 ounces of grape juice, unsweetened, for several weeks," he said. "Today I can't even look at a grape."

"You can't imagine what I went through. When I weighed 640, I had a 74-inch waist. It's now 42 inches. I literally wore the biggest pants and shirt in the world. I had to order them from a fit-all store in Chicago at $40 a set. And those were just grimy looking work clothes. My neck was 22 inches. Now it's 16 inches.

"My son used to have to put on my socks and tie my shoes. I'd walk 40 feet and be out of breath. I was a prison of fat."

In November, 1972, Leverton joined the Weight Watchers program.

HEARING FOR RAY

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Authorities secretly whisked James Earl Ray from his maximum-security cell at Tennessee state prison in Nashville to the Shelby County jail for a long-awaited evidentiary hearing.

Officials at the Memphis jail said the man who once admitted the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. arrived Sunday night under the escort of U.S. marshall George Tallent and at least five other federal officers and state corrections personnel.

A Pace for Thinking: In Praise of the Woods

It's been a coon's age since I last saw Bruce Hutchison (what IS a coon's age, by the way?), but a mutual friend tells me he still spends a lot of time cutting wood on his Shawnigan Lake property and I would guess that he now has enough wood to heat the western world for the next hundred years.

When I was a young whippersnapper or, let us say, a younger whippersnapper (and what IS a whippersnapper, by the way?) I used to twit Bruce about his habit of taking to the deep woods away from the hurly-burly of the workaday world and marvelled that he could write such penetrating essays on the state of society when they were formed so far from it.

Now that I am older, perhaps even a bit wiser and have six acres of tangled forest myself, I have come to realize that Bruce had found the perfect atmosphere for contemplation and the search for what passes as truth.

It is evident, of course, that every man involved in almost any kind of creative process has some personal idiosyncracy or approach to his task. I once had an editor who could not compose unless he was munching on copy paper and, indeed, once ate an entire lead editorial. Bill Mauldin, the cartoonist, remained immersed in a very hot bath until his idea for the day came magically upon him. Premier Barrett, when writing the notes for a speech, cannot manage a single line, I'm told, without removing his shoes. Even the late, great H. L. Mencken, the finest journalist of them all, was addicted to cutting and precisely stacking kindling in his Baltimore backyard as a necessity for getting his thoughts in order.

It just never occurred to me that the deep woods and a Swede saw with a sharp blade might be the combination, as they've been these many years for Bruce, to get my own thinking, such as it is, in some sort of orderly channel. What began, indeed, only as an exercise to feed an insatiable Ashley wood-burning stove has now become an essential part of my own occasional efforts to get things straightened out in my own head.

I fancy that Bruce could explain more clearly than I why this should be so, but there are certain obvious aspects to it that may be discovered by any man who may have a tree to dismember.

For one thing, the woods remain just about the last place where a man can find that feeling of cathedral isolation that's so necessary if he's to un-clutter his mind. The distractions are few, if any. My own hours with the saw are shared with a very saucy red-headed woodpecker who seems to have the idea that I am there simply to open up an insect world for his attention, but we have learned to work together in absolue harmony.

There is, too, the fact that sawing up lengths of fire wood is largely a physical reflex action that, in itself, requires no conscious cerebral effort, but merely a kind of mechanical rhythm so that when a man achieves that mysterious plateau of a second wind he may work away without ever giving it much thought.

Thoreau says in Walden Pond (a book that should be read or re-read whenever life seems too complicated) something to the effect that peace of mind can never be achieved without physical labor, a conclusion he had reached during his experiment with the simple life.

I have wondered myself if the chemistry may not be more involved or more subtle than that. It is something of a major, personal discovery to find that the more you work the body in this way the more you activate the energy of the mind, a sort of purification process that may have something to do with heart, blood and lungs. We're constantly told that exercise is necessary to keep a tone to the body. That it may also contribute to a tone of the mind seems a logical side effect.

I never achieve that sense of balance, for that really is what it is, without wondering if it might not provide some answers to the dilemma of our world. It seems to be that if we could isolate the statesmen and the policy-makers in such hushed surroundings, give them a Swede saw and an acre of forest and time to find their own direction, we might produce some very direct and simple solutions to problems that are now met by compromise and deviousness.

I keep wondering what might happen, for example, if Pierre Elliot Trudeau were up there in my own woods with only a saucy, red-headed woodpecker for company, with all the time in the world to stand back, as it were, from the political scene. Would he, too, find that clarity of thinking that comes with the most primitive kind of labor? Would he emerge with the quality of true leadership that's rooted in the conviction of contemplation in a setting that inspires both humility and revelation?

I suppose we'll never know. For myself I know only that I've an astonishing pile of wood to keep the home fires burning and an abiding wish that I'd found Bruce's secret a very long time ago.

City Nursing Schools Likely to Go

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The winds of change are blowing hard at the venerable nursing schools operated by Victoria's two general hospitals. It seems likely that one, possibly both schools, will disappear.

In their place will probably emerge a regional school of nursing at the University of Victoria or Camosun College, and a committee from hospitals, university and college is now looking into what would serve best.

Next year UVic will offer a program enabling registered nurses to earn their baccalaureate or nursing degree. But the change now being debated is at the primary level of nurse training, the "diploma" course taught at the two local hospital schools which prepares a student to write national exams and qualify as a "registered" nurse.

Nursing spokesmen say the evolution in training is province-wide, really nationwide, and the objective is a better and more efficiently prepared nurse.

The message from senior nursing staff at hospitals is that nursing care must be on a level with specialized care being offered by other health workers, says Mary Richmond, director of educational resources at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A few decades ago, almost every hospital in B.C. operated its own nursing school. Now only four remain. Jubilee opened its school in 1891. The St. Joseph's School of Nursing operated by Victoria General dates from 1900. Besides these, only Vancouver General and Royal Columbian on the mainland still operate schools.

Jubilee will consider phasing its school out if and when there's assurance of a suitable alternative, says Dr. A. J. Pickles, executive director.

What comes out of the committee meetings on an alternative could mean the end of the St. Joseph's School, says Barbara Burke, nursing director at Victoria General.

There's more than one reason for the demise of the hospital nursing school.

"Hospitals are in the patient care business, not the education business," said Claire Kermacks, director of education services for the Registered Nurses Association of B.C.

Over the years hospitals have had to find the money for their nursing schools from budgets intended for patient care, she says. To help offset the schools costs, student nurses spend part of their time staffing the hospital wards.

That means the diploma course at the hospital school has taken three years to complete. By making the program solely an education one, the course can be reduced from three years to two, Mrs. Kermacks says.

Miss Burke says she hopes that at the St. Joseph's School none of student nurses' time will be budgeted for staff nursing by next year.

She disputes that hospitals can ever get out of the education business. They are the essential workshops for interns, student nurses and a variety of technicians.

But she does favor a nursing school, linked not just with a hospital but with all agencies where students are trained.

Three mainland community colleges as well as the B.C. Institute of Technology now offer the diploma course, said Mrs. Kermacks.

Two other community colleges have such a course in the planning stage and UBC has had the first two years of its baccalaureate program recognized as a diploma course.

The diploma course and the exam for registration is the first of four rungs a nurse can climb in her formal education. Earning her baccalaureate is next. A masters degree and a doctorate could follow.

While UBC offers a masters program and UVic may before long, nowhere in Canada at present can a nurse take her doctorate in nursing. In 1972 there were only 35 nurses in Canada with a doctorate, four of them working in B.C.

In addition, the RNABC has helped organize a variety of post-gradute courses, usually three months, in such specialities as intensive care nursing, coronary care, operating room procedure, obstetrics, pediatrics and psychiatric nursing.

No one argues that hospitals will continue to have a major role in the clinical training of nurses, as well as continuing to be their major employers.

But the trend in training is towards more promotion of health rather than just the curing of sickness, says Mrs. Kermacks. Hospital nursing schools, she says, tend to concentrate training on care of the acutely ill because that's what hospitals are all about.

While the form of a new school for nurses has yet to take shape, and affiliation with university of college has yet to be settled, students at St. Joseph's School have begun this fall to take courses at the university. Only nursing skills are now being taught at the Victoria General school.

Prove Deaths Say Hospitals

The executive directors at both of Victoria's general hospitals called today for any evidence that local residents have died for lack of hospital care.

They were commenting on a claim by a Sooke physician, Dr. Brian Perry-Whittingham, that there is a "high probability" some Greater Victoria residents have died because a shortage of acute-care beds prevented them from getting hospital care.

Perry-Whittingham also said competition between Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals had resulted in the shortage.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director at Jubilee, said he knows of no evidence to support the claim and if there is any it should be brought forward "by the doctors who have this impression."

At Victoria General, executive director Jim Fair said there is an onus on the doctor to show any case where a patient needing emergency care was not admitted.

Hospital spokesmen have reported for years they have obsolete facilities badly needing modernizing.

The two hospitals have co-operated better than most across the country, Fair added, but both have a right to be adamant about maintaining general hospital services.

Area Visibility Back to Normal

The stagnant air that hung over Victoria before the weekend is gone and visibility is better than normal, a Pat Bay weather office spokesman said today.

After visibility dropped to 2.5 miles Friday, partly because of smog, it increased to 30 miles Sunday.

Air disturbances over the weekend moved smog away from the city and brought cool, clear weather.

Slash fires up-Island brought in much of the stagnant air, officials said.

In Vancouver, Pollution Control Board engineer Stan Vernon said the carbon monoxide level in the air over that city Friday was five points above the accepted standard.

Authorities in Seattle issued an alert late last week urging persons with heart and lung diseases to stay indoors until the smog there cleared.

Region Plan Interest Low

Tuesday's two public hearings on the proposed official regional plan for the metropolitan area had not produced by today the evidence of keen public interest which Capital Region District officials were expecting.

"We've received very few indications that there's going to much of a turnout at all," said CRD executive director Dennis Young.

He said the public hearing some months ago on the Agricultural Land Reserve produced some 90 written submissions, most of them advance ones, as well as about 20 verbal presentations at the hearing.

"I would have expected something along those lines but so far, at least, that doesn't appear to be the case," Young said.

The regional plan seeks to establish land-use and transportation policies for the whole Victoria metropolitan area up to 1996. Its growth limitation aspects have already drawn heavy fire from Central Saanich and Sidney municipalities while Highlands residents have voiced concern at the proposal to shift significant residential growth to that district.

The public hearings Tuesday, in the Capital Regional District board room at 524 Yates, start at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m.

TRACKING DOGS, a police helicopter and roadblocks were all brought into play for several hours Sunday after a man with a minor gunshot wound reported to police a gunman had shot him with a handgun and fled. The 'victim,' James Arthur Anderson, 22, of Butte, Mont., pleaded guilty today in Duncan provincial court of public mischief. His stomach wound had been self-inflicted. He was remanded to Oct. 24 for sentencing.

Prof. Russia-Bound

Dr. David Griffiths, A University of Victoria French instructor, is one of five Canadian scholars chosen by the Soviet Union to be a visiting researcher at a Russian university.

Griffiths will study at Mechnikov State University in Odessa from January through April 1975 where his main interest will be to "observe first-hand the methods employed in teaching foreign literature at a Soviet institute."

His visit was arranged under an academic exchange agreement recently signed by Canada and the Soviet Union.

Author's Advice: Failure Not Hard to Take

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Success is hard to handle; Failure is much easier.

This is the advice U.S. writer Robert Nathan has for aspiring scribes.

Nathan, here with his actress wife Anna Lee on a visit from California, turned 80 last Jan. 2.

He began writing as a student in Harvard when "American writers were just opening their wings."

Fifty-six volumes later — 40 of them novels — the man who was a "regular" on the best-sellers list from 1933 to 1946 is still writing.

Yet, his was no meteoric breakthrough into literature. In his quiet wisdom, he's grateful for that.

"Success is a very hard thing to handle. Failure is not a hard thing to handle," he said. "Early success means often a young writer must struggle to keep afloat and where he's reached. I've seen young pop singers burned out in five years. Enormous success can be terribly hard."

There's a whimsical honesty about the honorary fellow of the Academy of American Arts as he describes his less-than-spectacular debut into professional writing.

"I left Harvard to get married. I wanted to be a reporter but no newspaper would have me. I never got past the office boy."

Living in New York, his first job was with an advertising agency:

"My wife's cousin had a small advertising agency," he recalled, "and a friend of my mother had a paint business. I got his account — and a job."

His first book, Peter Kindred, was written in 1917. It was a nostalgic piece, based on his days at Harvard.

"It was 1919 before it was published," Nathan remembered, "and only then because the publisher was told 1,000 Harvard men would rush out and buy it."

NATHAN
. . . grateful

They didn't.

Nathan said out of 1,000 books, only 100 were sold, 5 mostly to members of his family.

Eyes twinkling, he explained:

"Scott Fitzgerald brought out a book about Princeton at the same time. Harvard lost that year!"

Nathan kept writing, his first best seller being One More Spring. Published in 1933 the plot was based on the Depression Years.

He's been writing ever since, his latest book based on today's "violent times."

Living near Beverly Hills, it was inevitable that Nathan would be drawn into writing movie scripts.

Those that thrilled to MGM's oldtimer The White Cliffs of Dover were stirred by Nathan's script.

Nathan, although he writes fantasy, does not believe in insulating himself from the outside world when he works.

"I have written 13 or 14 hours at a time," he admitted," but some days I spend three or four hours at my desk.

"But I can always be disturbed. I used to write with my study door open until we got a Great Dane who decided to take over my study."

Nathan describes the role of a writer as being "very hard work, very lonely work and often very discouraging work; draining yourself emotionally, day after day, week after week, month after month."

Why then at 80, is he still at it?

"The act of creation is a joy," he admitted. "There's nothing but sheer joy in putting down thoughts you never thought you had.

"In all my books I've tried to preach — if that is the right word — love and respect for the mystery of life; the incomprehensible mystery of life and the nonsense of trying to define the incomprehensible."

Future Uncertain For Old School

The former St. Anns Academy building will be used as "temporary space" for provincial government facilities but its future is still uncertain.

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley said today the future of the building "depends on many things" and he had no official statement to make.

City council has passed a motion asking Hartley for assurance the old school building on Humboldt, now owned by the government, will not be torn down. Hartley said he has not received any word from council on that motion.

The problem with preserving the building, he said, is that it does not meet with federal building code earthquake standards.

The cost of stabilizing the building would be "prohibitive," said Hartley, but it does not necessarily follow that the province will have to tear it down.

Instead, he said, the province may seek changes in the federal code to cover historical buildings which cannot possibly meet building regulations.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

In a release from the University of Southern California, I read that one of four unexpected by-products of the abdominal operational operation originated years ago by Dr. J. Howard Payne to quickly remove excess fat from terribly overweight person, is to enable some diabetics to stop having to take insulin.

What is done is to remove surgically most of the small bowel which normally absorbs digested food into the body. Because the food goes very quickly from the stomach to the large bowel, the body does not have a chance to turn it into fat.

Dr. Payne's first patient in 1956 was a 23-year-old woman whose weight dropped from 297 to 120 pounds. The next patient was a 590 pound man who lost 400 pounds in two and a half years. A young man, aged 26, who weighted 600 pounds, now weighs 196. All are now living normal healthy lives.

Other results of shortening the small bowel from 20 feet to 18 inches are the reduction of dangerously high cholesterol levels to normal in even thin persons, and the removal of excessive fat cells from the livers of non-drinkers, who otherwise might die of cirrhosis like any advanced alcoholic.

As I have written here before, great overweight can seriously shorten a person's life, and can cause a dangerous high blood pressure. A professor of mine once asked me if I had even known a very obese person who had lived into his 80s, and I could remember only one or two.

Overweight is often a lifetime problem that starts in childhood. As Dr. Payne said about obese youngsters, "If they don't win the weight battle early they are doomed to be greatly overweight for the rest of their lives. They will surely develop coronary artery disease, some other form of lung or heart disease or diabetes, and remain obese.". Losing this excess weight can sometimes save a person's life. But the operation can be dangerous, hence it must not be rushed into carelessly.

Interestingly, in a report from the University Hospitals of Cleveland (Ohio), I read that researchers have developed a new type of white rat that develops enormous amounts of fat throughout its body, and passes this characteristic on to its offspring. Such rats weigh more than twice as much as do normal rats, and have a distinctive rounded body shape.

Even when these rats are fed a diet containing a very small amount of fat, they remain obese. This same characteristic has been observed in human beings as well.

Also, the obese rats, like their human counterparts, develop hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure, kidney disease and early kidney failure, perhaps due to the high levels of fat in the blood, and they die much earlier than do other rats. Dr. Simon Koletsky, the pathologist in charge of the study of these little animals, feels, that the obesity and tendency to develop high amounts of fat is the result of a genetic defect.

I was much interested in an article I saw by science writer Maury M. Breecher, who described a certain man who was as big around as he was tall — 6 feet two inches tall and 6 feet two inches across. He had a 74-inch waistline, which made it very difficult for him to go through his kitchen doorway.

He had difficulty breathing and he couldn't sleep comfortably, but he kept eating. He would have a dinner of four pounds of meat, four potatoes and a half loaf of bread. After work he might drink seven or eight "boilermakers" (whiskey with a beer chaser), and during the day and evening, between meals, he would snack.

According to the insurance statistics, if the man did not lose much of his great bulk, he would die before long, and his doctor warned him of the same consequence. Remarkably, the man was able to stay on a diet of 500 calories a day, and in a year he was able to lose 325 pounds.

A photograph of him taken after his weight loss shows him as a normally built man. His former 74-inch waistline has gone down to 41 inches, and his chest measurement has gone from 72 inches to 42 inches. He was able to accomplish this feat without using diet pills — simply by counting calories. That shows what can sometimes be done."

WHEELS

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE:

My car, a 1968 Chevrolet with the 327-inch V-8, has been burning oil at the rate of about a quart every 300 miles. That was before the valve job. Now, after having the valves ground, it burns a quart every 150 miles. Several worn valve guides were replaced during the grind, and the mechanic led me to believe that replacing the guides would decrease oil consumption. Instead, oil consumption has doubled. The car now has 110,000 miles on it. Should I junk it? I hate to, because I've just sunk $165 into it for the valve job.—Burning

DEAR BURN:

You should have re-ringed the engine at the same time you had the valves ground. Your decision now is whether to live with the car as it (a polluter), to re-ring it at another $175-$250, or whether to trade it in on something newer. Since the choice involves so many variables, I'll have to leave it to you.

DEAR MIKE:

Just recently bought citizen's band (CB) radio and installed it in my Vega. With engine running, much static. Almost impossible to get low-signal stations. Have tried alternator filter. No good. Also tried to connect radio directly to battery with shielded cable. No good again. Installed resistor plugs. You guessed it. What now? — C.B.

DEAR C.B.

Head for shop that specializes in CB radio installations.

DEAR MIKE:

It's not illegal in some areas for an independent garage or a car owner to remove or disconnect his car's anti-smog system. One outfit is well-known for smogger removals. Should I have the anti-smogger on my 1972 Riviera removed? I find the engine sluggish and gas mileage shocking. But there's no guarantee that things will improve after the operation. What do you say? — Hedgy

DEAR HEDGY:

There's been relatively little data gathered on the effects of smogger disconnects. One trade magazine, "Motor," reports, "Several companies and a government agency have conducted tests to determine what happens when a mechanic . . . modifies or disconnects smog control equipment. In a few instances, fuel economy has improved . . . But in most instances something like eight or nine cars out of 10 — the job has been bungled, with the result that the car gets fewer miles to the gallon than it did pre-modification."

In Case Of Fire...

DEAR READERS: If statistics bore you, please read this anyway. The information may come in handy if you're ever on a quiz show. It could even save your life:

Q. When was the Chicago fire?

A. October 9, 1871, 103 years ago. But let's get a little more current, shall we? Did you know that last year in the U.S.A. 11,000 people died in 2,815,000 fires? And that in Canada, there were 830 deaths in 78,900 fires? Even more tragically, a large percentage of deaths were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone for just a few minutes.

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were: 1.) smoking, 2.) electrical wiring, 3.) heating and cooking equipment, 4.) children playing with matches, 5.) open flames and sparks, 6.) flammable liquids, 7.) suspected arson, 8.) chimneys and flues, 9.) lightning, 10.) spontaneous ignition.

Now for some tips that could save your life:

- Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. And never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.
- Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. And replace a cord if it is frayed.
- Never leave small children alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.
- Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.
- Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.
- Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.
- Never smoke in bed.
- Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.

Remember, fire extinguishers put out 97 per cent of all the fires on which they are used . . . Most large fires started as small fires . . . So invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher and keep it handy in your kitchen, or be a sport and buy one for your cottage, car, boat, and the back bedroom, too.

NOW, in case of fire:

Most fires occur between midnight and 6 a.m., so always sleep with your bedroom door closed. If you suspect fire, feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window. But first alert the rest of the household.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket and sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to call them. Get out — and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartmnet building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure — not even the family pet — is worth risking a human life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so. God bless. Have a good day! — Abby

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Oct. 22

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 — April 19): You get instructions from various quarters. Key is to be selective. You need not jump at every command. Stop carrying a burden not rightly your own. Another Aries — and a Libran — could figure prominently. Check advertising rates.

TAURUS (April 20 — May 20): Hold off on travel if possible. You require new approach. Paths that are worn may not be for you. Key is to pioneer, to start anew, to create your own traditions. Much of this is possible — now! Leo, Aquarius could be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Trust hunch. Share knowledge. Learn by teaching. Be open-minded about suggestion proferred by unorthodox individual. Accent is on money, income, potential, costs and perhaps a limited cash flow. What is discouraging is but a temporary condition.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Avoid trying to force others to your viewpoint. Key now is to ride with tide. There are obstacles which could ultimately prove of benefit. That may be paradoxical — but delay now actually does work in your favor. Keep the faith!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Avoid rush. There are activities behind the scenes which require slow, careful, seasoned consideration. Be aware of what is written between the lines. Someone may be trying to pull wool over your eyes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): What appears free-and-easy could be difficult and expensive. Means remember cliche about not judging a book by its cover. Young person who claims to know plenty could actually be whistling in the dark. Be wary of those who make fantastic claims. You will understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Situation concerning home, basic security is spotlighted, features change and unorthodox decisions. Another Libra, an Aries and a Taurus figure prominently. Key now is to be diplomatic. You get what you want — but not necessarily by pursuing it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Avoid tendency to fool yourself. See in light of actuality. Hold off on short journey if possible. Relative, at a distance, makes calls, sends letters and contents are not to be taken on surface value.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Money and how you spend it — that's spotlighted. Aquarian is in picture. Some of your wishes can be fulfilled, but not in manner you may have expected. There is peer pressure and partner, mate responds to it. Money picture clarifies and you handle added responsibility.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Cycle is such that you meet challenges and come out a better person for the experience. You finish assignment, complete project which had been "left hanging." You also learn some lessons about advertising.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You may not be touching all bases. Means it would be wise to double-check. What you thought was over and done may be slightly raw. Message will be clarified. Leo and another Aquarian are likely to be in picture. A secret becomes public knowledge. Don't bank on confidentiality.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Pace is slower but progress is possible. Means know where you want to go — get map and sharpen sense of direction. Those who seem conservative are really in your corner. There may be no fireworks, but the spark is present.

Homemade Soups Low-Cost, Quick

By HILDA BEASTALL

Collecting a few ideas for homemade soups is a good plan; it will be obvious that ingredients can be adapted to small amounts of cooked or raw vegetables and odds and ends of meat you have available, producing appetizing, nourishing soups at very low cost with a minimum of time.

The meat stock or chicken stock is obtained by simmering meat or chicken bones in salted water with whole garlic clove for about 20 minutes if the bones have already been cooked. Give them an hour if uncooked. Fish bones and skin may be similarly used.

Strain after boiling to eliminate bone fragments, but small pieces of meat should be picked out to add to the soup.

Vegetable stock is the juice or drained-off liquid from any vegetables previously used, kept for a day or two in covered glass jars. Pieces of vegetables in the liquid are of course accepted.

Instead of thickening soups with white flour, get the habit of adding a tablespoon of barley, brown rice, rolled oats, split peas either green or yellow, or lentils. One tablespoon of these dry products to one and half cups to two and a half cups of liquid will be right; or a quarter to one half cup if the thickening agent has been cooked previously. They all are of high nutrition value, adding flavor and texture too.

Add the tablespoon of rice or barley or whatever you choose, to whatever you cook in liquid for the longest period.

By using non-instant skim milk powder with the liquid in some of the soups, you produce a creamy soup with added protein without the richness and expense of cream which many people avoid.

These three soup recipes serve two generously. Double the ingredients to serve four. Wholewheat bread cheese-and-lettuce sandwiches go well with any of the soups for a nourishing noon meal for adults or children coming home from school for a quick lunch.

CARROT SOUP

1 cup cooked carrot
¼ cup cooked rice
2 cups meat stock or vegetable stock
½ tsp fine chopped onion
chopped parsley, cress or chervil

Cook onion in the stock for 5 minutes. Add carrot and rice, heat thoroughly, taste for seasoning with a little salt. Serve hot sprinkled with chopped parsley or other green.

CUCUMBER SOUP

1 eight to 10-inch cucumber
2 tbsp soft margarine
1 small onion, chopped fine
2½ cups chicken or meat stock
1 tbsp split yellow peas
3 tbsp. skim milk powder
¼ tsp curry powder
2 tsp finely chopped parsley or chervil. Diced cucumber (no need to remove seeds unless the cucumber is getting old, nor to peel); saute for 10 minutes with the onion in margarine in saucepan large enough for the soup. Add 2 cups of the stock, bring to boil, add the split peas.

Simmer for 20 minutes or until peas are quite soft.

Mix milk powder into ½ cup stock, add curry powder and ¼ tsp salt. Blend into stock mixture. Reheat, stirring to blend. Serve with sprinkling of chopped parsley or chervil.

Langhope Torte: A Heart Thief

By MARY MOORE

Pat Connor lives in Liverpool, Australia and is a friend of Jane Levett's. Jane Levett is my daughter Marianne's close neighbor. Jane served Langhope Torte at a garden party to which all of the Pitts family and I and other neighbors were invited.

All of Jane's menu was exciting but I think the Langhope Torte stole our hearts.

This past weekend I made it and used it as a birthday cake. It is a dessert you will make for parties and should be carefully filed for unless you go to Jane's in Ottawa or Pat's in Liverpool, Australia, you will not find it again.

LANGHOPE TORTE

(Peach and almond; from Pat Connor of Liverpool, Australia)

Dough for Pastry Layers:

2 c. unsifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder
1 c. butter (no substitute)
1¼ c. granulated sugar
⅞ c. (4 oz.) finely chopped almonds

Filling:

1 pt. (20 oz.) 32 per cent (whipping) cream
1 19-oz. can sliced peaches, drained

To make Layers measure flour and baking powder into a bowl and cut butter in with a pastry blender until size of peas. Add sugar and knead dough about 5 minutes or until it is pliable and plastic enough to form into a 5" block (like a small brick). Chill for 10 minutes in refrigerator. Cut into five equal parts. (Next step is longest.).

There are two ways to do this. No. 1. Trace 10" circles on heavy foil and press dough EVENLY with palms and finger tips into thin wafers to fill and fit circles. Apportion chopped nuts and press into dough. Transfer carefully to oven on foil and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 9 to 10 minutes. Bake two at a time. Watch them for they burn suddenly if left a minute too long. OR No. 2. Line 9" layer cake pans with unbuttered wax paper. (I only had three of these pans so had to wait to do the last two wafers until first three were baked.) Press one-fifth of dough into each using your palms and finger tips to make them perfectly level. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 10 to 11 minutes. DO NOT BURN. About 2 minutes after removing from oven carefully, invert onto wax paper, peel off foil or wax paper and let cool. NOTE No. 1: These wafer layers may be made one or two days in advance. If so store stacked at room temperature with wax paper between each.

To assemble torte drain and dry peaches on paper towels. Select 8 choice slices for decorating top. Chop remainder in about ¼" pieces. Whip cream until stiff. Fold in chopped peaches. Spread between layers. Reserve a little for border on top. Decorate cream border with reserved peach slices. NOTE No 2: I think this torte is at its best assembled about 2 hours before serving time. My reason is that the wafers being very crisp would be difficult to serve neatly UNLESS the cream filling soaks into them a little in advance.

A most unusual and delicious and very rich dessert. Our party-minded hostesses should clip this recipe please for the entertaining season is rapidly approaching. Thank you Pat from "Up Over" to "Down Under."

More Abuse of English Tongue

Articles have been appearing recently in big circulation newspapers across the country, deploring the flagrant abuse of the English language by television newscasters and advertisers.

Excerpts from those articles have been printed in our local newspapers; included among these some pertinent paragraphs from novelist and short story writer Jean Stafford's piece in a Sunday edition of The New York Times.

Miss Stafford wrote that the "high linguistic crimes" committed by TV newscasters proverished the richest land and by advertisers "have imguage in the world."

Also that the constant abuse of spoken and written English is a situation which has grown so familiar so widespread, that we are in danger of succumbing to a lingering literary fever.

She then goes on to present some facts that should be obvious to all of us — and yet that we condone and in many instances, are guilty of ourselves.

For instance, that we have been "surfeited with vogue words" (charisma, clout, escalate); that "verbs and nouns have been homogenized" (to alibi, to structure, a conceptual construct, a meaningful re-think) and "adjectives and adverbs beaten to a pulp."

At one point this intelligent woman uses the words "in depth" to point up what she calls "a grammatically impossible phrase."

If you say "I am preparing an in-depth report," she insists it means nothing at all, except perhaps that you "were studying the bottom of the ocean ... Careful, detailed, or thorough are the terms used by educated people."

That last bit set me thinking of a deskman we had on this newspaper many years ago. His name was Tommy Thomas and he loved the English language.

One of his pet aversions was use of the world "short" as in short hour, short week or short year.

"There is no such thing as a short hour, or week, or year," he would roar. Then, he would add "sloppy English!" And, of course, he was right.

The Stafford remarks also set me thinking of an article I had kept from a long ago B.C. Teachers' magazine, and I went rummaging through my files to find it.

Entitled "A Dozen Bloopers," it has to do with the misuse of words in manuscripts received by that magazine, also the failure to use the right word to express the meaning a writer intends.

A number of words are listed to prove the editor's points. For instance, "comprise" and "compose." These are often confused, the article says. "Comprise" means to contain, embrace or include. The whole therefore comprises the parts, not vice versa. The most common error is such a sentence as "The committee was comprised of six members.".

Here's another — "due to." This expression is commonly misused. It is an adjective, not an adverb. One cannot say, for example, "due to the fact that there were no textbooks, the students had to use other learning material."

I wonder how many who write for this newspaper have made that error over the years?

The words "fewer" and "less." The error here is to use "fewer" for "less." The first is properly used with number; the second, with quantity.

"Hopefully."—The way this word is being used now (hopefully, the size of classes will get smaller) is still regarded as an error by most authorities. What people really mean is "it is hoped that" or "if hopes are realized."

"Infer" and "Imply" — The first is often used incorrectly. It means to derive by means of reasoning, or to deduce. "Imply" means to suggest, signify or hint. We imply something is what we write or say. On the other hand we infer something from what we have written or said.

"Only" — This word is frequently misplaced. For example, a person will say or write "I only have 45 students in my class this year" instead of "I have only 45 students ..."

"Preventive" — This word is definitely preferred to "preventative" in such sentences as "education is one of the best preventive measures society can take against soaring welfare costs."

There are other "bloopers" listed in this interesting article. "Bloopers" that are made day after day in this age of sloppy English.

Think about it for a moment. Check the columns of any newspaper — big or small. Perhaps tune in your TV set tonight and make a few notes.

Then I'm certain you will agree, as Miss Stafford says — "nowadays we do not speak and we do not write; we communicate."

She concludes with the highly caustic sentence — "so do dung beetles communicate with one another, so do sheep and rattlesnakes and so do jackasses."

That last word is hers — not mine.

Breast Exam Process May Cut Radiation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A small research company working with the University of Southern California has developed a new process of examining women for breast cancer which may cut down radiation by as much as 90 per cent.

Women who suspect or are concerned that they might have incipient breast cancer have in the past been faced with a cruel dilemma — because the very x-ray tests used to spot tiny lumps can cause tissue damage.

A technique termed xonics electron mammography — XEM — is now in the laboratory stage, and initial tests indicate that while it can produce equally as good pictures as conventional x-rays the XEM requires 10 times fewer x-ray waves.

The process was developed over a period of four years by Sonics, Inc., Van Nuys, Calif., and the USC School of Medicine whose research has been headed by Dr. George Jacobson, chairman of the radiology department, and Dr. Robert Carangi, assistant professor of radiology.

The USC radiologist cautioned against thinking of the new technique as being a "great breakthrough" in detection but said it held significant promise in enabling women to undergo examinations on a regular basis without the fears they have had in the past.

Brilliant Pianist Dazzles Full House

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Exciting performances by both guest artist and orchestra brought a capacity symphony audience to its feet on more than one occasion Sunday at the Royal Theatre.

This pair of concerts presents Victoria music lovers with one of the world's truly superb artists of the pianoforte.

Philippe Entremont is a magnificent virtuoso. But his virtuosity is the luminous kind that permits his artistic concept full control.

The tremendous power and brilliance of his performance of Ravel's Concerto for Left Hand, revealed consistently what some renowned virtuosos lack — respect for his instrument as a musical source. Never did the piano appear at the mercy of the performer. Entremont is its complete master but a loving and dedicated one.

The poetic nature of his artistry was affectionatly revealed in the slow movement of Ravel's G Major Concerto which filled the second half of the program.

This adagio is a long, lyrical piano solo, complemented at times by hushed murmurings from the orchestra. The singing legato phrases, the sense of an on-flowing stream against a rhythmic pulse, the rich but delicate coloring, was developed through a touch and tone control of ineffable beauty and sensitivity.

It is rare — if ever, that a movement of a concerto is repeated. But the flashing brilliance of artist and ensemble in the brief final movement brought such a clamorous response from the audience that this actually happened.

For maestro Laszlo Gati and the orchestra, the occasion was a triumph.

Not only did they accompany beautifully and to the obvious satisfaction of Entremont — who pays extraordinary attention to what is going on in the orchestra — but the opening number, Huapango by Jose Moncayo, proved a thrilling spirited work, played with great vitality of rhythm, flaring color and assurance and with immense credit to the percussion and brass sections.

Esquisse, by the Canadian composer, Francoise Morel, emphasized the new beauty and unanimity of the strings and the luminosity of the reeds.

It is an impressionistic piece like a series of delicate vivid sketches.

There are many fine subtlties worked into its fabric and pleasing rhythmic changes.

This second concert of the new season which will be repeated tonight at 8:30, is a tribute to Gati's work in developing an orchestra such as few if any cities this size can claim.

PRE-DINNER CONVERSATION is shared by Premier Dave Barrett, Lieutenant-Governor Walter Owen, and Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme, right, at Government House Sunday. Palme was in Victoria for a day at the end of a cross-Canada tour which marks the first ever by a Swedish head of state. He was honored with a dinner at Government House and a sightseeing tour by Barrett.

BACTERIAL WAR ON TREE BUGS

To control caterpillars destroying timber in the province, the B.C. Forest Service will utilize a bacterial spray on trees next summer.

Spraying will be under "strictly-controlled conditions and after consultations with various other land-use agencies including the fish and wildlife department," said a company official.

False hemlock loopers are the culprits, and the infected region encompasses 6,000 acres from Kamloops to Chase and up the North Thompson River.

"The loopers' attack on the (Douglas) firs began two years ago," said the official, "and the situation is now reaching alarming proportions."

He said if the caterpillars, which become winged beetles, feed on foliage for a third year, "complete devastation for the region" could result.

A test spray using hormones to inhibit the insects growth, was tried last summer but failed to solve the problem.

Second B.C. Man Chosen To Head Maritime Branch

Rear-admiral Andrew Collier, 50, will become chief of maritime operations at national defence headquarters Ottawa Nov. 12.

He was promoted to rear-admiral rank Oct. 1 and will succeed Rear-Admiral Richard Leir, who is retiring.

Both men are from British Columbia, Collier from Salmon Arm and Leir, former commander maritime forces Pacific, from Penticton.

Both are also veterans of the Second World War and the Korean conflict.

Leir, who is 53, survived two ship sinkings in the Second World War. He was officially listed as dead during the last three years of the war while he was held prisoner by the Japanese.

He served aboard the destroyer-escort HMCS Athabaskan during her first tour of duty in Korean waters.

Later, he was executive officer of the aircraft carrier HMCS Bonaventure, commander the destroyer-escort Skeena and was commander of the First Canadian Escort Squadron.

Leir, who is a graduate of the National Defence College, also served as director-general of individual training for the Canadian armed forces.

He will make his home in Nova Scotia.

'Human Torch' Serious

A 45-year-old man remains in serious condition at Victoria General Hospital after he set himself on fire Friday night in Campbell River.

Robert Ivan Barrow, of Campbell River, poured paint thinner over his body and drove to a news stand to buy matches and ignite himself after his son and a friend had stopped him once already from doing so, RCMP said Sunday.

Campbell River resident John Steven, buying a newspaper at the stand, saw "a man running down from the top of the parking lot flaming like a human torch."

Steven extinguished the fire with a blanket after telling Barrow to lie down and roll on the ground.

The man was taken to Victoria General Friday night.

Barrow's son told RCMP his father had been depressed that day after appearing in court for having pointed a firearm and was on probation at the time of the incident.

ALL IN UVIC'S GAME

Developers wrangle with planners; politicians wrestle with election tactics and pollution experts pressure for projects; it's all in the game called APEX.

Sponsored by the University of Victoria's school of public administration, the game is designed to teach a concrete understanding of the dynamics and complexities of municipal problems.

Victoria residents are invited to take part next month.

APEX stands for Air Pollution Exercise and is a "tremendously complex game which requires a large number of people and a computer," explains instructor Bart Cunningham.

"Anything that can happen in reality can happen in this game," says Cunningham, who taught it at the University of Southern California where APEX was developed in cooperation with the University of Michigan as a $1 million training tool for students.

Currently a part of the UVic's curriculum, participants get instructions and information from computer readouts, and there are no rules in the traditional sense. Each role player has a goal and the goals of various players often come into conflict.

The game can be played by between 25 and 150 persons taking on such roles as politicians, city managers, pollution control officers, newsmen, industrialists.

APEX was originally designed for training pollution control officers to learn what they would be up against in local government. The simulated metropolitan area in the game is "very much like Victoria, except it doesn't have an ocean," says Cunningham.

The game will be staged for the general public and UVic students Nov. 16, 23 and 30 in the Commons Block.

Those who play will have to commit themselves for all three days. To register, contact Cunningham at UVic, 477-6911.

Cosby's Past Becomes You

By CAROL BRADY
Times Staff

The sound system wasn't ready, the stage chair was wrong, and nobody seemed to know where the houselights dimmer switch was, but Bill Cosby warmed a cold Saturday night Memorial Arena audience from the moment he ambled onto the makeshift stage.

He traded quips with late stragglers, urged some people whose views were blocked to move closer, and for an hour and a half, took a near-capacity audience on a hilarious, nostalgic journey through their past.

Cosby has the gift of making familiar and funny, most of the everyday experiences of growing up. His past becomes yours, no matter what your background.

Somehow a baby's first testy steps are funny; bad breath in the morning becomes a huge joke; a lecture from mom is a riot, and a trip to the dentist becomes a scene from a W. C. Fields comedy classic.

You get to know Cosby's family and you meet — and even like — his friend Roland. He's the one who could roll his upper eyelids inside out. And there wasn't likely a man in the house who didn't fingle at Cosby's reminiscences of his friends' souped-up cars.

During intermission, somebody left a Tootsie Roll on Cosby's chair. Returning, he wryly observed: "Would you give a Tootsie Roll to Tom Jones?"

You probably wouldn't, but then that's what makes Cosby so special. He's reachable. You can lean right out and touch him, and many in the audience did.

And, in return, he told us we were great — winners in fact.

"Do you know that 45,000 sperm cells compete for one egg. Do you realize what the odds are in a contest like that. Right! So if you never feel great about anything else in life, remember, you WON!"

20th Century Pirates Beset U.S. Sailboat

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — On a clear, calm day about 35 miles off the coast of China last April, a small sailing ship carrying five Americans from Taiwan to Hong Kong ran up against an unexpected problem: 20th century pirates.

"Nobody believed that in this day and age we'd get chased by Chinese pirates," said Jane White, navigator of the 51-foot ketch "Dagny Taggart."

White, 27, of Devizes, England, was aboard the "Taggart" when it arrived in Los Angeles recently after completing a seven-month voyage from Taipei.

Describing the attempted capture, she said two Chinese junks bore down on the "Taggart" about 125 miles northeast of Hong Kong last April 21. One of the Chinese boats rammed the sailing vessel.

She said the crew had been completely surprised when the pirate ships approached, and declared:

"We sighted the first junk, about a 60-footer, and it obviously altered course to ours. We believed they were chasing us and changed our course downwind and turned on the engines to get away," she said.

"We were making headway initially. However a second and larger boat, about 80 feet, obviously with large engines, appeared and quickly caught up with us. They must have had radio contact and called for it.

"There were about 50 or 60 persons — families including women and children — on the large boat, and perhaps 30 on the smaller.

"They were waving spears and harpoons, yelling at us in Chinese, and pointing to shore to make us head that way. They were even tearing up their decks and throwing the pieces at us.

"The first time one of the wood chunks splashed into the water off our bow, we thought they had thrown a bomb and were waiting for the explosion."

GARDENING

Meet the Bulbs That Aren't

Ranunculus and anemone are found listed with the bulbs in books and catalogues though neither is a bulb. The storae root that you buy of ranunculus is a thing like the tooth of a big dog; an anemone root looks like a piece of bark from the beach or a small plug of chewing tobacco.

The flowers of both plants are beautiful, charming, long-lasting, good for house bouquets and gorgeous in the garden, and between them, cover the whole range of known colors.

If you don't already know and grow these plants try a dozen of each for planting this fall.

Two requirements for success are a soil with plenty of humus to retain moisture next spring and summer yet not be waterlogged in winter; and plenty of sunlight for blooming from April to July.

We are accustomed to consider anemone and ranunculus together for one complements the other, and they are related. Both belong in the great Buttercup Family.

Anemone coronaria (known also as Crown-anemone) is the large single in rich clean colors of scarlet, purple, blue, pink, mauve and pure white. The wide poppy-like flowers are boldly held on 12-inch stems, rising from dark green fern-like leaves which appear in late fall or winter before the flower buds. This single form is called the French Anemone de Caen.

A double form with the name of St. Brigid is liked by some gardeners, but the flowers lack the clarity and boldness of the de Caen singles. Color range is about the same and growing requirements are similar.

Leaves are similar to anemone, favoring the general outline of buttercup leaves but less finely cut than anemone.

A sunny bed or border planted with these two relatives give a fine show and ample cut flowers for three months. Both must have that humusy yet sandy soil; drainage must be perfect in winter but watering in spring and summer is essential for their continued growth and bloom.

An extra mulch of compost around the plants in late April assures that the moisture will be held below and prevents the hard baking of the topsoil which these plants dislike.

When you see the roots as you buy them your first thought is "how do I plant them." The anemone corm is planted with the rounded side down, the nobby side up. The nobs are growth buds. If in doubt — plant on edge.

The ranunculus root looking like a dog's tooth is planted with the crown (of the tooth) upwards, the fangs downwards. Both need about two inches of soil above them.

Sunny planter boxes or tubs on balconies will be gay spots for months if these still rather uncommon flowers are chosen. To some gardeners they are oldfashioned and still lovely, to others they will be new.

Planted now, the anemone leaves will be showing during a mild spell in winter. The ranunculus will wait until early spring.

University Opens Saunders Building

The $460,000 Saunders building was officially opened today on University of Victoria campus by UVic Chancellor Robert T. Wallace.

Wallace unveiled a dedication plaque at the building located on the north side of McKenzie Avenue which houses offices and shops of the buildings and grounds department, traffic and security and campus planning.

Replacing army buildings constructed during the second world war, the building is named after former superintendent of buildings and grounds Arthur Saunders, who joined the staff of Victoria College in 1962 and was closely associated with the planning and development of the Gordon Head campus when the college became a University in 1963.

Saunders was appointed director of campus planning in 1970 and held that position until he retired in 1971. He attended the ceremony along with faculty and staff and Acting President S. A. Jennings.

U.S. Bracing For Coal Strike

WASHINGTON (WP) — Government energy planners are considering such steps as halting all coal exports and even asking Congress for a federal excise tax on electricity if there is a long coal strike this winter.

Some experts think there may be such a strike after the present national contract between the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association and the United Mine Workers Union expires Nov. 12.

Bargaining, which broke down briefly earlier this month, has now resumed, but neither side is especially optimistic about the outcome.

UMW members produce about 70 per cent of the nation's coal.

A prolonged coal strike could force a shutdown of the nation's steel mills and ripple out from there to shut down other industries. It could also eventually force the nation's coal-burning utilities to cut back on production of electricity.

The government's contingency plans — still being developed — are aimed at staving off these results. But that means a strike will have less effect, and the UMW has described the plans as strike-breaking.

Frank G. Zarb, associate director of the government's Office of Management and Budget and co-chairman of an inter-agency task force that is doing the planning, said yesterday the government is trying not to interfere — even indirectly — in the present bargaining. At the same time, he said, it wants to be prepared if a crippling strike does occur.

Zarb said that all of the government's planning is still very much in the talking stage, with no decisions made. Most of the planning that has gone on so far has been in the Federal Energy Administration; it has not risen yet to the White House level.

The various steps that FEA has under consideration were first made public some days ago by the union in its newspaper, the United Mine Workers Journal.

FEA then issued a statement acknowledging it was "analyzing and developing potential measures to relieve the negative impacts of a possible coal strike this fall," but saying these were not "an attempt to influence the outcome of the collective bargaining process."

BLAZING, WHITE UFO HOVERED NEAR FARM

TURNER VALLEY, Alta. (CP) — A blazing, white Unidentified Flying Object rearing like a jet aircraft has been reported hovering near a farmhouse near Priddis, 10 miles west of Calgary, an RCMP officer says.

An officer of the RCMP Turner Valley detachment said he went to the scene Saturday and saw three mysterious objects flit about above the Rocky Mountains.

RCMP Turner Valley said in a statement Sunday that "the object is described as being 60 feet in diameter and 25 feet high, giving off a very white light as it hovered about 100 feet from the ground."

Constable Dave Grundy said the UFO was first reported at 2:30 a.m. Oct. 13 by a woman living on a farm near Priddis. The woman did not want her name released.

SEES OBJECTS

Constable Grundy said he went to the scene when the object was again reported last Saturday at 2:50 a.m.—and this time he saw it too.

"It was oblong with a crown and windows on the crown giving off a clear light. It was close enough they (the woman and her children) could compare it in size to their house. Inside was a white-white light. It sounded like a jet engine without the whine. After about two minutes it took off to the north and then west very fast, they said."

The constable said that by the time he arrived, the object had flown off to the west watched by the woman and her children through a telescope. Looking through the telescope the officer said he saw "three objects jumping around all over the place in the west above the Rockies."

"They appeared to be diamond-shaped," the constable said. "That was quite an experience . . . I saw what I saw."

Kinsmen Honor UVic Professor

University of Victoria professor Dr. Bill Gaddes has been awarded an Order of Merit by the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C. for his work with brain-damaged children in the province.

Dr. Gaddes was cited for his "outstanding contribution" in the establishment of B.C.'s first neuropyschological laboratory for the assessment of brain-damaged children, which began on a part-time basis in 1962 at UVic.

In 1964 it began on a daily basis, receiving children and adults with medically documented brain damage or dysfunctions under referral from neurologists and other medical specialists.

He established a second laboratory in 1965 at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where, in co-operation with its department of neurology and neurosurgery, patients before and after brain surgery are examined.

Students work as technicians and research assistants in the program.

Dr. Gaddes was an elementary school teacher in the 1930s and began teaching psychology at UVic in 1946. In 1966 he won a career award from the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded which took him to Boston for a year's study. He is currently on one-year's study leave from UVic.

LONG-HAIR MICE HOPE FOR MAN

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists are growing long hair on mice by using a silicone mixture which they say might lead to the development of a human hair restorer, the newspaper Socialist Industry reports.

It says some experiments are being conducted with humans, and "for the time being the results are giving hope." It gives no details of these experiments.

The research team also expects the preparation to be used in agriculture and in breeding such fur animals as mink and sable.

The research is being conducted at an organic chemistry institute in Irkutsk, Siberia, and the preparation, "created on the basis of silicone," has been named Mival, for the two scientists who developed it, Mikhail Voronkof and Valery Dyakov.

When Mival was used on mice, they grew hair "so long it could be braided." The researchers said the growth of hair and fingernails on humans, of fur, antlers and hooves on animals and the growth of some crops and trees depends to a great extent on the silicone content.

Story Time Promises Surprises

Pre-school story times with stories, puppets and song will be held at the Greater Victoria public library Wednesday mornings for boys and girls aged three to five.

The half-hour programs start Oct. 23 with Hawaii Calls—which will include a story and song and dance from the islands—and runs to Dec. 11 when the Happy Holiday program promises a surprise for youngsters.

Story times start at 9:30 a.m. and interested parents are asked to register their children at the library youth department on the third floor of the Central library on Yates.

Killer Dysentery

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — Six Mexicans die every hour from dysentery and other intestinal diseases, health ministry statistics show. The ministry estimated the yearly death toll from the diseases at 50,000—25 times higher than in the United States—citing lack of hygiene as the main reason for the high figure.

PEKING LIONS from Hong Kong were the main attraction at the 19th Annual Lantern Festival held at the weekend in Central junior secondary school. Organizers said it was the most successful festival ever with over 3,000 persons in attendance and $8,000 in proceeds for the Chinatown Lions Club.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of the most fascinating plays in bridge is the "coup." This play refers to an end-play situation in which a defender's finessible trumps are trapped without taking a finesse. The latter situation develops when there is no entry to take a finesse, or where there is no trump to lead for a finesse.

Quite often, this coup has to be prepared for by shortening declarer's trump length, reducing it to the same length as the defender's. Such was the case in today's deal.

Neither side vulnerable. south deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	3 ♦	Pass	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♥.

West's lead of the heart nine showed (by pre-arrangement) either two higher cards or none. East won the trick with the heart ace, cashed the king of diamonds, and reverted to hearts, South's jack being taken by West's king.

West now tried to cash the diamond ace, but South ruffed. South then played the ace of trumps, after which he led the trump queen, which East won with the king. When West discarded a diamond on the lead of the trump queen, declarer received the bad news that he had to worry about a second trump loser (which, if lost, would result in his defeat).

Upon winning with his trump king, East exited with his remaining heart, South's queen capturing the trick. Declarer now adopted the only line of play that stood a chance of bringing home the contract.

Despite the fact that dummy had two high cards upon which he could discard his losing club (the diamond queen and the heart six), declarer next led a club and finessed dummy's jack. He needed the extra entry to dummy in order to "coup" East's remaining 10-7 of trumps.

With the jack winning, declarer now ruffed a diamond, thus reducing his trump length to that of East's (South had the doubleton J-9 over East's doubleton 10-7.) He then re-entered dummy via the club king, and led the high six of hearts. East discarded a club—and South tossed away the club ace.

A club lead off dummy now "couped" East, whose last trumps, while South's last two cards were the J-9 of trumps.

Gas, Dogs Disperse Africans

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Mine security forces used tear gas and dogs Sunday night to disperse about 1,000 African workers at a gold mine near here where a week's unrest has followed an inter-tribal fight which left one black dead.

The managing director of the East Rand mine, J. J. Fourie, said the latest trouble began when about 1,000 miners advanced on the administrative building in their living compound.

He said mine security forces let their dogs into the compound "just to show them we would maintain order" and two of the workers were bitten.

"This obviously did not put them in a better mood," Fourie added. "They went back to their rooms and started getting riotous. The position looked as if it could get out of hand and we put tear gas among them."

Maritimes Lashed By Storm

HALIFAX (CP) — A state of emergency was declared in Sydney Sunday as Cape Breton assessed the effects of a severe storm that left most of the Maritimes with snarled transportation and communications.

It is expected to take several days to erase most of the scars of the storm and more snow was expected in P.E.I. today with flurries elsewhere and temperatures in the 30s.

Sydney Mayor Earl Tubrett declared the state of emergency and city police ordered motorists off the road. Police were to arrest anyone who appeared to be merely "an onlooker," Tubrett said. There was practically no electrical power in the city.

Emergency reception centres were set up in two high schools for at least 33 families whose homes were badly damaged by the snow, rain and high winds.

City police were helped by local militia to protect damaged store fronts and homes from possible looting.

The city and many parts of Cape Breton and eastern Nova Scotia were pounded by winds with gusts to 85 miles an hour. One gust at Sydney airport was recorded at 115 miles an hour.

The rest of the Maritimes was blanketed with heavy, wet snow with some areas receiving almost a foot. Power was knocked out in many communities and Prince Edward Island was almost entirely without power.

There was at least one storm-connected fatality and reports of several persons missing.

Ferry service between New Brunswick and P.E.I. and North Sydney and Newfoundland was halted because of the high winds.

Several major highway snarls were reported and Canadian National passenger trains were being halted at Amherst, N.S. because of fallen telegraph poles and trees on the tracks.

George Alan McLean, 62, of Londonderry, N.S., was killed Sunday when a barn collapsed on him.

The Trans-Canada Highway between Amherst and Truro, N.S., was closed for four hours during the afternoon because of poor visibility and a 20-car pileup.

Four fishermen, two from Petit de Grat and two from Canso, were presumed drowned during the storm.

Fruit growers in the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia fear heavy apple crop damage but the full extent of damage cannot be determined until the snow melts.

An Air Canada spokesman said many flights had to be cancelled because of poor visability and wind conditions.

Small aircraft at Sydney and Debert, N.S., were heavily damaged as high winds tossed them around.

Oregon Braces to Fight Blackout Blackmailer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — State, local and federal authorities have begun preparations to counter possible power blackouts in case an extortionist carries out his threat to dynamite more transmission line towers in the Portland area.

Bonneville Power Administration officials, area police and the FBI reviewed emergency plans Sunday after the power administration refused to pay a $1-million ransom demanded in an extortion letter.

"If we ever pay one penny of blackmail in this kind of situation, there isn't a power system in the United States that would be safe," a power official said.

Officials from area military installations and the Oregon National Guard were briefed on the situation.

Portland General Electric Co. and Pacific Power and Light, major city-based utilities, fired up reserve combustion-powered and steam plants to provide extra electricity if needed.

City officials asked for approval to order overtime shifts for workers already converting a civil-defence shelter into a communications centre for emergency services.

"What we probably face is an outage where the entire area might be totally without power for a few hours up to a day or two," said power administrator Don Hodel.

Since Sept. 26, 11 transmission towers have been dynamited in the Portland area, eight of them within the last week. Three of the towers were toppled, with damage estimated at $250,000, and unexploded devices were found attached to several other towers.

The Bonneville Power Administration supplies electricity to all city utilities.

There are 750,000 residents in the Portland area, Hodel said if more transmission towers are damaged, emergency measures might be required that would result in blackouts that would last 16 hours a day until towers were repaired.

A letter addressed to the administration arrived at the Portland FBI office Friday. It demanded $1 million and was signed "J. Hawker," which authorities interpret as a variation of the term "Jayhawker" used to describe guerrillas and looters after the U.S. Civil War.

The letter said in part: "The extent of damages resulting from the demolition of five or your power line towers Wednesday night is incidental. Our intent is to either collect $1 million or to make you people wish to hell we had."

Hodel said he believed the only motive of the extortionist is money.

Don't Be Specific —Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard Nixon advised his counsel, John Dean, on March 21, 1973, to make a "rather general" statement clearing each White House aide of any complicity in Watergate, according to a tape played in court today.

The tape of the discussion on the afternoon of March 21 was played in U.S. district court as Dean, the government's first witness in the Watergate cover-up trial, appeared to be nearing the end of four days of direct questioning by the prosecutors.

Nixon told Dean in the tape recorded conversation that he should prepare a written report "which is a very general, understand. Understand (laughs), I don't want to get all that goddamned specific . . .

"But if you make it rather general in terms of my — your — investigation indicates that this man did not do it, this man did not do it, this man did do that," Nixon said, emphasizing the "did" and "that" the last time he used those words.

Dean, who was said at the time to be heading Nixon's investigation of Watergate, then repeated for Nixon an earlier suggestion to allow witnesses, including White House aides, to go before the grand jury under the protection of immunity from prosecution so that they might give full testimony.

John Ehrlichman, then No. 2 White House aide, resisted Dean's suggestion and said "you end up with people in and out of the White House indicted for various, for various offences."

NEWS BRIEFS

Trudeau in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau arrived in Paris today for talks with French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing aimed at ending seven years of friction between the two countries.

French officials said the two leaders hoped to close out a troubled era begun with the late French President Charles de Gaulle's controversial 1967 visit to Quebec.

Dictator Charged

ATHENS (AP) — The chief Athens prosecutor charged former dictator George Papadopoulos and other junta chiefs today with responsibility for the deaths of at least 18 persons in a student uprising.

Two Die in Train

DUBLIN (Reuter) — A train with no one at the throttle ran 23 miles today before causing a crash in which two persons died and 11 were injured.

One report said the driver of the runaway train got out to inspect a mechanical fault shortly after leaving Dublin and the train went off without him.

Strikes Hit Scots

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Thousands of commuters in Scotland's biggest city struggled to work on foot today as strikes, which have already halted garbage removal, sewage disposal and road transport, spread to public transit.

Eight major strikes involving more than 22,500 workers have hit central Scotland.

Island Leads In Fatalities

Vancouver Island led the province in fatal accidents at the weekend with four Port Alberni residents killed Sunday in a two-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Chemainus and the death of an unidentified man who stumbled while crossing a railway bridge at Duncan.

Two Lower Mainland road deaths brought the B.C. weekend total to seven.

Killed in the crash three miles north of Chemainus were Kai Yu Eng, 38, his wife Betty Gim Yip, 25, their son Howard Hayven, 3, and a family friend, Donna Mah, 7, RCMP said.

Eng's northbound car collided with a southbound Alberta-registered camper van. A man and a woman in the Alberta car were taken to hospital.

The Fort McMurray couple was taken to hospital suffering from multiple injuries. Richard Garfat, 30, is listed in fair condition at Victoria General Hospital, and his wife Janet, 30, is in satisfactory condition at the Chemainus

Cause of the accident was not disclosed.

In Duncan a 37-year-old man was killed Friday when he stumbled while crossing a railway bridge and plunged into the Cowichan River, landing in two feet of water. His name had not been released this morning.

Gregory Wadman, 19, of Vancouver was killed Sunday when the car he was riding in struck a lamp standard in Vancouver.

Raymond Walter Harrison of New Westminster was killed Saturday in a single-vehicle accident on Highway 3, about 10 miles southwest of Penticton in the Okanagan. Harrison was alone when his car went out of control and struck a utility pole.

Four persons were taken to hospital Saturday following a two-car collision on Island Highway half a mile south of Parksville.

Scott Mathison, 62, of Port Alberni, was admitted to Nanaimo Regional General Hospital with chest and face injuries. He was in fair condition. His wife Ethel received chest injuries and was in good condition.

Also in good condition is another passenger, Mary Minard, of Port Alberni, who received head injuries.

Gerald Veilleux, of Nanaimo, the driver of the other car, was treated then released from hospital.

RCMP said charges are being contemplated.

PEAKS ERUPT

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Three volcanoes have erupted in western Guatemala, raining hot ash and rocks on a nearby town and killing a baby boy, authorities said Sunday.

Most of the 12,000 residents of Yepocapa, 24 miles west of the capital, have fled their homes, the authorities said. They estimated damage to crops — mostly coffee and cotton — at $35 million.

The eruptions have affected more than 20 villages in the area.

CFB Civilians Talk Strike

EDMONTON (CP) — Rumblings of strike action among civilian employees at Canadian Forces Base Edmonton could spread across the country, Kent Green of Ottawa, national secretary-treasurer of the Union of National Defence Employees, said Sunday night.

Green, in Edmonton to attend a mass union rally tonight, said in an interview that there is discontent across the country with wages paid to the civilian employees of armed forces bases. However, he agreed after talking with Lou Purcell, president of the Alberta branch of the union that the Alberta employees are much more militant than workers at other bases.

Ken Munroe, an executive officer with the union's Victoria local, confirmed the problem is a national one.

"I can confirm Mr. Green's statement is correct and includes this area," he said, "Federal civil servants are being paid rates way under outside ones."

Munroe said civil servants, who have put in years of service, would be reluctant to leave, jeopardising their pension plans but short-term employees and "younger people" would be lured to outside industries because of the bigger wages.

Purcell said many of the 759 civilian employees, especially the heating plant operators, are working seven days a week, up to 12 hours a day, because the armed forces are unable to keep employees who leave to obtain better wages elsewhere.

Anderson Backed

VERNON (CP) — David Anderson says he considers he has been given a clear-cut mandate to lead the provincial Liberal party.

Anderson of Victoria was re-elected leader of the B.C. Liberal party by acclamation at a three-day provincial Liberal party convention which ended here Sunday.

Doreen Braverman of Vancouver was re-elected president of the party, winning over Anthony (Tony) Graham of Vancouver.

Don Wray of Victoria was chosen vice-president, defeating nominees Don Green of Vancouver and Don Ohs of Kamloops.

Former Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford was elected membership chairman by acclamation.

In a close vote, the Liberal youth caucus delegates elected Sue Hutchinson of Victoria Liberal youth caucus chairman. She defeated University of B.C. student Tony Zipp to succeed UBC student Mark Moseley to the position.

Among the 11 regional vice-presidents elected, all by acclamation, was Frank Preston of Victoria.

Rich Nations Blamed for Famines

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A U.S. government study of the world food crisis says agricultural policies of rich nations have kept poor countries from becoming self-sufficient.

The study contradicts the view that the world is facing a crisis in which population growth outstrips the ability of countries to produce enough food, the Washington Post says.

The study predicts huge surpluses in rich countries and huge deficits in poor ones by 1985 unless there is "a serious re-evaluation of agricultural and food consumption policies in all parts of the world," the Post says.

There is no actual worldwide shortage of food the report says and blames hunger abroad on artificial price structures, subsidies, mismanagement, political decisions and "cheap food" policies.

It says, "since supply was seriously interrupted in 1972 (by the large-scale sale of U.S. grain to Russia) and 1974 (by bad weather), prices have remained high, supplies are unstable and the immediate future uncertain.

The study was prepared by the economic research service of the U.S. agriculture department and has not been published, the Post says, adding that the newspaper had obtained a copy.

A continuation of present trends, one projection in the report shows, might result in a surplus of 51.9 million tons of food in developed countries and a deficit of 47.6 million tons in developing countries by 1985.

A House of Represntatives agriculture subcommittee report released Saturday said mass starvation will occur throughout the world if food production is not intensified and population patterns are not changed.

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures prices were strong in the major pits on the Board of Trade Monday.

Soybeans gained around 10 cents a bushel, while nearby soybean oil was up 100 points in one option. Soybean meal was about $4 a ton lower, although the most distant September option was down $8 a ton. Corn futures were up 5 cents a bushel and wheat gained 8 cents. Oats were up 2½ cents.

Trade was mixed on the opening in the major pits and prices were irregular. The goverment announcement over the weekend that Russia would buy 2.2 million tons of wheat and corn was accepted as a bullish factor on the opening. However, there was some concern in the trade that the language of the announcement might indicate that the Russians would get no more wheat from the Unuted States until next year's harvest.

After the opening, the pace of trade was very slow except in the oil pit. There, local professionals hiked nearby options sharply higher against sales of deferreds in spreading fashion.

For a time, corn and oats futures displayed some weakness after the opening, but in the last few minutes the most distant options improved sharply.

Wheat futures also appeared to move rather slowly through most of the session and forged ahead at the close as shorts were forced to cover positions. Some commercial involvement on the close was on the buying side.

Program Offensive —Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and its plans for International Women's Year (IWY) were the target for a series of resolutions during a two-day weekend conference that ended Sunday.

The representatives of 76 women's groups, includinmg 16 native women's delegates, also protested the dismissal of Suzanne Findlay as head of the women's program in the secretary of state department, and objected to the expenditure of $500,000 for an advertising program the women found both ineffectual and offensive, and asked that the $2.5 million budgeted for the IWY program be spent differently than proposed.

They want "a healthy proportion of the money now allocated to the conference diverted instead to publicity programs at the local level."

They also want Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, responsible for implementing legislation on the status of women, to take the lead not only on the federal level, but also on the provincial and municipal levels to have legislation and bylaws affecting women either changed or initiated.

Letters outlining their demands were sent to Lalonde, Privy Council president Mitchell Sharp and other ministers.

Murder Toll 623

DETROIT (AP) — Police say two slayings early Sunday raised Detroit's 1974 homicide toll to 623. That compares with a record 602 killings reported for the same period a year ago. Police said the latest killings occurred when two men shot each other, apparently in an argument over a woman.

Deadlock Boosts Nixons

Victoria Nixons Trucking gained sole possession of first place and Juan de Fuca Gulls moved into a tie for second spot as the two South Island Junior "B" Hockey League teams played to a 3-3 deadlock Sunday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Two other league teams fared badly in interlocking action against members of the North Island League. Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking dropped a 7-5 decision Sunday to host Nanaimo and Saanich Braves were beaten 8-6 Saturday by Timbermen in Port Alberni.

Kevin Killington gave Gulls the tie with a goal at 18:32 of the third period. Ron Hope and Steve Smith were the other Juan de Fuca marksmen.

Norm Allen scored twice for Victoria and Robbie Wilson added a single.

Mike Forrest(3), Mart Coulombe and Jim Calder scored for Lake Cowichan.

Saanich goals were scored by Rob Coldwell, Andy Wallace, Perry Carrigan, Mike Shemilt, Brian Moroney and Tom Tillotson.

Rick Boyd, Doug Hannah and Neil Sanders scored two goals each for the Lakers and the other scorers were Bob Riddell and Gus Ryan. Dale McLachlan and John Hunter scored for the Gulls.

Stockers North Americans pulled into a tie with Buckaroos Saturday night by downing Chemainus Blues 7-2 at Fuller Lake Arena.

Bayden Robinson scored three goals for Stockers, who led 4-0 after the first period.

A Pace for Thinking: In Praise of the Woods

It's been a coon's age since I last saw Bruce Hutchison (what IS a coon's age, by the way?), but a mutual friend tells me he still spends a lot of time cutting wood on his Shawnigan Lake property and I would guess that he now has enough wood to heat the western world for the next hundred years.

When I was a young whippersnapper or, let us say, a younger whippersnapper (and what IS a whippersnapper, by the way?) I used to twit Bruce about his habit of taking to the deep woods away from the hurly-burly of the workaday world and marvelled that he could write such penetrating essays on the state of society when they were formed so far from it.

Now that I am older, perhaps even a bit wiser and have six acres of tangled forest myself, I have come to realize that Bruce had found the perfect atmosphere for contemplation and the search for what passes as truth.

It is evident, of course, that every man involved in almost any kind of creative process has some personal idiosyncracy or approach to his task. I once had an editor who could not compose unless he was munching on copy paper and, indeed, once ate an entire lead editorial. Bill Mauldin, the cartoonist, remained immersed in a very hot bath until his idea for the day came magically upon him. Premier Barrett, when writing the notes for a speech, cannot manage a single line, I'm told, without removing his shoes. Even the late, great H. L. Mencken, the finest journalist of them all, was addicted to cutting and precisely stacking kindling in his Baltimore backyard as a necessity for getting his thoughts in order.

It just never occurred to me that the deep woods and a Swede saw with a sharp blade might be the combination, as they've been these many years for Bruce, to get my own thinking, such as it is, in some sort of orderly channel. What began, indeed, only as an exercise to feed an insatiable Ashley wood-burning stove has now become an essential part of my own occasional efforts to get things straightened out in my own head.

I fancy that Bruce could explain more clearly than I why this should be so, but there are certain obvious aspects to it that may be discovered by any man who may have a tree to dismember.

For one thing, the woods remain just about the last place where a man can find that feeling of cathedral isolation that's so necessary if he's to un-clutter his mind. The distractions are few, if any. My own hours with the saw are shared with a very saucy red-headed woodpecker who seems to have the idea that I am there simply to open up an insect world for his attention, but we have learned to work together in absolue harmony.

There is, too, the fact that sawing up lengths of fire wood is largely a physical reflex action that, in itself, requires no conscious cerebral effort, but merely a kind of mechanical rhythm so that when a man achieves that mysterious plateau of a second wind he may work away without ever giving it much thought.

Thoreau says in Walden Pond (a book that should be read or re-read whenever life seems too complicated) something to the effect that peace of mind can never be achieved without physical labor, a conclusion he had reached during his experiment with the simple life.

I have wondered myself if the chemistry may not be more involved or more subtle than that. It is something of a major, personal discovery to find that the more you work the body in this way the more you activate the energy of the mind, a sort of purification process that may have something to do with heart, blood and lungs. We're constantly told that exercise is necessary to keep a tone to the body. That it may also contribute to a tone of the mind seems a logical side effect.

I never achieve that sense of balance, for that really is what it is, without wondering if it might not provide some answers to the dilemma of our world. It seems to be that if we could isolate the statesmen and the policy-makers in such hushed surroundings, give them a Swede saw and an acre of forest and time to find their own direction, we might produce some very direct and simple solutions to problems that are now met by compromise and deviousness.

I keep wondering what might happen, for example, if Pierre Elliot Trudeau were up there in my own woods with only a saucy, red-headed woodpecker for company, with all the time in the world to stand back, as it were, from the political scene. Would he, too, find that clarity of thinking that comes with the most primitive kind of labor? Would he emerge with the quality of true leadership that's rooted in the conviction of contemplation in a setting that inspires both humility and revelation?

I suppose we'll never know. For myself I know only that I've an astonishing pile of wood to keep the home fires burning and an abiding wish that I'd found Bruce's secret a very long time ago.

City Nursing Schools Likely to Go

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The winds of change are blowing hard at the venerable nursing schools operated by Victoria's two general hospitals. It seems likely that one, possibly both schools, will disappear.

In their place will probably emerge a regional school of nursing at the University of Victoria or Camosun College, and a committee from hospitals, university and college is now looking into what would serve best.

Next year UVic will offer a program enabling registered nurses to earn their baccalaureate or nursing degree. But the change now being debated is at the primary level of nurse training, the "diploma" course taught at the two local hospital schools which prepares a student to write national exams and qualify as a "registered" nurse.

Nursing spokesmen say the evolution in training is province-wide, really nationwide, and the objective is a better and more efficiently prepared nurse.

The message from senior nursing staff at hospitals is that nursing care must be on a level with specialized care being offered by other health workers, says Mary Richmond, director of educational resources at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A few decades ago, almost every hospital in B.C. operated its own nursing school. Now only four remain. Jubilee opened its school in 1891. The St. Joseph's School of Nursing operated by Victoria General dates from 1900. Besides these, only Vancouver General and Royal Columbian on the mainland still operate schools.

Jubilee will consider phasing its school out if and when there's assurance of a suitable alternative, says Dr. A. J. Pickles, executive director.

What comes out of the committee meetings on an alternative could mean the end of the St. Joseph's School, says Barbara Burke, nursing director at Victoria General.

There's more than one reason for the demise of the hospital nursing school.

"Hospitals are in the patient care business, not the education business," said Claire Kermacks, director of education services for the Registered Nurses Association of B.C.

Over the years hospitals have had to find the money for their nursing schools from budgets intended for patient care, she says. To help offset the schools costs, student nurses spend part of their time staffing the hospital wards.

That means the diploma course at the hospital school has taken three years to complete. By making the program solely an education one, the course can be reduced from three years to two, Mrs. Kermacks says.

Miss Burke says she hopes that at the St. Joseph's School none of student nurses' time will be budgeted for staff nursing by next year.

She disputes that hospitals can ever get out of the education business. They are the essential workshops for interns, student nurses and a variety of technicians.

But she does favor a nursing school, linked not just with a hospital but with all agencies where students are trained.

Three mainland community colleges as well as the B.C. Institute of Technology now offer the diploma course, said Mrs. Kermacks.

Two other community colleges have such a course in the planning stage and UBC has had the first two years of its baccalaureate program recognized as a diploma course.

The diploma course and the exam for registration is the first of four rungs a nurse can climb in her formal education. Earning her baccalaureate is next. A masters degree and a doctorate could follow.

While UBC offers a masters program and UVic may before long, nowhere in Canada at present can a nurse take her doctorate in nursing. In 1972 there were only 35 nurses in Canada with a doctorate, four of them working in B.C.

In addition, the RNABC has helped organize a variety of post-gradute courses, usually three months, in such specialities as intensive care nursing, coronary care, operating room procedure, obstetrics, pediatrics and psychiatric nursing.

No one argues that hospitals will continue to have a major role in the clinical training of nurses, as well as continuing to be their major employers.

But the trend in training is towards more promotion of health rather than just the curing of sickness, says Mrs. Kermacks. Hospital nursing schools, she says, tend to concentrate training on care of the acutely ill because that's what hospitals are all about.

While the form of a new school for nurses has yet to take shape, and affiliation with university of college has yet to be settled, students at St. Joseph's School have begun this fall to take courses at the university. Only nursing skills are now being taught at the Victoria General school.

Prove Deaths Say Hospitals

The executive directors at both of Victoria's general hospitals called today for any evidence that local residents have died for lack of hospital care.

They were commenting on a claim by a Sooke physician, Dr. Brian Perry-Whittingham, that there is a "high probability" some Greater Victoria residents have died because a shortage of acute-care beds prevented them from getting hospital care.

Perry-Whittingham also said competition between Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals had resulted in the shortage.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director at Jubilee, said he knows of no evidence to support the claim and if there is any it should be brought forward "by the doctors who have this impression."

At Victoria General, executive director Jim Fair said there is an onus on the doctor to show any case where a patient needing emergency care was not admitted.

Hospital spokesmen have reported for years they have obsolete facilities badly needing modernizing.

The two hospitals have co-operated better than most across the country, Fair added, but both have a right to be adamant about maintaining general hospital services.

Area Visibility Back to Normal

The stagnant air that hung over Victoria before the weekend is gone and visibility is better than normal, a Pat Bay weather office spokesman said today.

After visibility dropped to 2.5 miles Friday, partly because of smog, it increased to 30 miles Sunday.

Air disturbances over the weekend moved smog away from the city and brought cool, clear weather.

Slash fires up-Island brought in much of the stagnant air, officials said.

In Vancouver, Pollution Control Board engineer Stan Vernon said the carbon monoxide level in the air over that city Friday was five points above the accepted standard.

Authorities in Seattle issued an alert late last week urging persons with heart and lung diseases to stay indoors until the smog there cleared.

Region Plan Interest Low

Tuesday's two public hearings on the proposed official regional plan for the metropolitan area had not produced by today the evidence of keen public interest which Capital Region District officials were expecting.

"We've received very few indications that there's going to much of a turnout at all," said CRD executive director Dennis Young.

He said the public hearing some months ago on the Agricultural Land Reserve produced some 90 written submissions, most of them advance ones, as well as about 20 verbal presentations at the hearing.

"I would have expected something along those lines but so far, at least, that doesn't appear to be the case," Young said.

The regional plan seeks to establish land-use and transportation policies for the whole Victoria metropolitan area up to 1996. Its growth limitation aspects have already drawn heavy fire from Central Saanich and Sidney municipalities, while Highlands residents have voiced concern at the proposal to shift significant residential growth to that district.

The public hearings Tuesday, in the Capital Regional District board room at 524 Yates, start at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Prof. Russia-Bound

Dr. David Griffiths, A University of Victoria French instructor, is one of five Canadian scholars chosen by the Soviet Union to be a visiting researcher at a Russian university.

Griffiths will study at Mechnikov State University in Odessa from January through April 1975 where his main interest will be to "observe first-hand the methods employed in teaching foreign literature at a Soviet institute."

His visit was arranged under an academic exchange agreement recently signed by Canada and the Soviet Union.

Author's Advice: Failure Not Hard to Take

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Success is hard to handle; Failure is much easier.

This is the advice U.S. writer Robert Nathan has for aspiring scribes.

Nathan, here with his actress wife Anna Lee on a visit from California, turned 80 last Jan. 2.

He began writing as a student in Harvard when "American writers were just opening their wings."

Fifty-six volumes later 40 of them novels — the man who was a "regular" on the best-sellers list from 1933 to 1946 — is still writing.

Yet, his was no meteoric breakthrough into literature. In his quiet wisdom, he's grateful for that.

"Success is a very hard thing to handle. Failure is not a hard thing to handle," he said. "Early success means often a young writer must struggle to keep afloat and where he's reached. I've seen young pop singers burned out in five years. Enormous success can be terribly hard."

There's a whimsical honesty about the honorary fellow of the Academy of American Arts as he describes his less-than-spectacular debut into professional writing.

"I left Harvard to get married. I wanted to be a reporter but no newspaper would have me. I never got past the office boy."

Living in New York, his first job was with an advertising agency:

"My wife's cousin had a small advertising agency," he recalled, "and a friend of my mother had a paint business. I got his account — and a job."

His first book, Peter Kindred, was written in 1917. It was a nostalgic piece, based on his days at Harvard.

"It was 1919 before it was published," Nathan remembered, "and only then because the publisher was told 1,000 Harvard men would rush out and buy it."

NATHAN
... grateful

They didn't.

Nathan said out of 1,000 books, only 100 were sold, mostly to members of his family.

Eyes twinkling, he explained:

"Scott Fitzgerald brought out a book about Princeton at the same time. Harvard lost that year!"

Nathan kept writing, his first best seller being One More Spring. Published in 1933 the plot was based on the Depression Years.

He's been writing ever since, his latest book based on today's "violent times."

Living near Beverly Hills, it was inevitable that Nathan would be drawn into writing movie scripts.

Those that thrilled to MGM's oldtimer The White Cliffs of Dover were stirred by Nathan's script.

Nathan, although he writes fantasy, does not believe in insulating himself from the outside world when he works.

"I have written 13 or 14 hours at a time," he admitted," but some days I spend three or four hours at my desk.

"But I can always be disturbed. I used to write with my study door open until we got a Great Dane who decided to take over my study."

Nathan describes the role of a writer as being "very hard work, very lonely work and often very discouraging work; draining yourself emotionally, day after day, week after week, month after month."

Why then at 80, is he still at it?

"The act of creation is a joy," he admitted, "There's nothing but sheer joy in putting down thoughts you never thought you had.

"In all my books I've tried to preach — if that is the right word — love and respect for the mystery of life; the incomprehensible mystery of life and the nonsense of trying to define the incomprehensible."

Future Uncertain For Old School

The former St. Anns Academy building will be used as "temporary space" for provincial government facilities but its future is still uncertain.

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley said today the future of the building "depends on many things" and he had no official statement to make.

City council has passed a motion asking Hartley for assurance the old school building on Humboldt, now owned by the government, will not be torn down. Hartley said he has not received any word from council on that motion.

The problem with preserving the building, he said, is that it does not meet with federal building code earthquake standards.

The cost of stabilizing the building would be "prohibitive," said Hartley, but it does not necessarily follow that the province will have to tear it down.

Instead, he said, the province may seek changes in the federal code to cover historical buildings which cannot possibly meet building regulations.

Maritimes Lashed By Storm

HALIFAX (CP) — A state of emergency was declared in Sydney Sunday as Cape Breton assessed the effects of a severe storm that left most of the Maritimes with snarled transportation and communications.

It is expected to take several days to erase most of the scars of the storm and more snow was expected in P.E.I. today with flurries elsewhere and temperatures in the 30s.

Sydney Mayor Earl Tubrett declared the state of emergency and city police ordered motorists off the road. Police were to arrest anyone who appeared to be merely "an onlooker," Tubrett said. There wa practically no electrical power in the city.

Emergency reception centres were set up in two high schools for at least 23 families whose homes were badly damaged by the snow, rain and high winds.

City police were helped by local militia to protect damaged store fronts and homes from possible looting.

The city and many parts of Cape Breton and eastern Nova Scotia were pounded by winds with gusts to 85 miles an hour. One gust at Sydney airport was recorded at 115 miles an hour.

The rest of the Maritimes was blanketed with heavy, wet snow with some areas receiving almost a foot. Power was knocked out in many communities and Prince Edward Island was almost entirely without power.

There was at least one storm-connected fatality and reports of several persons missing.

Ferry service between New Brunswick and P.E.I. and North Sydney and Newfoundland was halted because of the high winds.

Several major highway snarls were reported and Canadian National passenger trains were being halted at Amherst, N.S. because of fallen telegraph poles and trees on the tracks.

George Alan McLean, 62, of Londonderry, N.S., was killed Sunday when a barn collapsed on him.

The Trans-Canada Highway between Amherst and Truro, N.S., was closed for four hours during the afternoon because of poor visibility and a 20-car pileup.

Four fishermen, two from Petit de Grat and two from Canso, were presumed drowned during the storm.

Fruit growers in the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia fear heavy apple crop damage but the full extent of damage cannot be determined until the snow melts.

An Air Canada spokesman said many flights had to be cancelled because of poor visability and wind conditions.

Small aircraft at Sydney and Debert, N.S., were heavily damaged as high winds tossed them around.

Oregon Braces to Fight Blackout Blackmailer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — State, local and federal authorities have begun preparations to counter possible power blackouts in case an extortionist carries out his threat to dynamite more transmission line towers in the Portland area.

Bonneville Power Administration officials, area police and the FBI reviewed emergency plans Sunday after the power administration refused to pay a $1-million ransom demanded in an extortion letter.

"If we ever pay one penny of blackmail in this kind of situation, there isn't a power system in the United States that would be safe," a power official said.

Officials from area military installations and the Oregon National Guard were briefed on the situation.

Portland General Electric Co. and Pacific Power and Light, major city-based utilities, fired up reserve combustion-powered and steam plants to provide extra electricity if needed.

City officials asked for approval to order overtime shifts for workers already converting a civil-defence shelter into a communications centre for emergency services.

"What we probably face is an outage where the entire area might be totally without power for a few hours up to a day or two," said power administrator Don Hodel.

Since Sept. 26, 11 transmission towers have been dynamited in the Portland area, eight of them within the last week. Three of the towers were toppled, with damage estimated at $250,000, and unexploded devices were found attached to several other towers.

The Bonneville Power Administration supplies electricity to all city utilities.

There are 750,000 residents in the Portland area, Hodel said if more transmission towers are damaged, emergency measures might be required that would result in blackouts that would last 16 hours a day until towers were repaired.

A letter addressed to the administration arrived at the Portland FBI office Friday. It demanded $1 million and was signed "J. Hawker," which authorities interpret as a variation of the term "Jayhawker" used to describe guerrillas and looters after the U.S. Civil War.

The letter said in part: "The extent of damages resulting from the demolition of five or your power line towers Wednesday night is incidental. Our intent is to either collect $1 million or to make you people wish to hell we had."

Hodel said he believed the only motive of the extortionist is money.

Don't Be Specific —Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard Nixon advised his counsel, John Dean, on March 21, 1973, to make a "rather general" statement clearing each White House aide of any complicity in Watergate, according to a tape played in court today.

The tape of the discussion on the afternoon of March 21 was played in U.S. district court as Dean, the government's first witness in the Watergate cover-up trial, appeared to be nearing the end of four days of direct questioning by the prosecutors.

Nixon told Dean in the tape recorded conversation that he should prepare a written report "which is a very general, understand. Understand (laughs), I don't want to get all that goddamned specific . . .

"But if you make it rather general in terms of my — your — investigation indicates that this man did not do it, this man did not do it, this man did do that," Nixon said, emphasizing the "did" and "that" the last time he used those words.

Dean, who was said at the time to be heading Nixon's investigation of Watergate, then repeated for Nixon an earlier suggestion to allow witnesses, including White House aides, to go before the grand jury under the protection of immunity from prosecution so that they might give full testimony.

John Ehrlichman, then No. 2 White House aide, resisted Dean's suggestion and said "you end up with people in and out of the White House indicted for various, for various offences."

Island Leads In Fatalities

Vancouver Island led the province in fatal accidents at the weekend with four Port Alberni residents killed Sunday in a two-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Chemainus and the death of an unidentified man who stumbled while crossing a railway bridge at Duncan.

Two Lower Mainland road deaths brought the B.C. weekend total to seven.

Killed in the crash three miles north of Chemainus were Kai Yu Eng, 38, his wife Betty Gim Yip, 25, their son Howard Hayven, 3, and a family friend, Donna Mah, 7, RCMP said.

Eng's northbound car collided with a southbound Alberta-registered camper van.

The Fort McMurray couple was taken to hospital suffering from multiple injuries. Richard Garfat, 30, is listed in fair condition at Victoria General Hospital, and his wife Janet, 30, is in satisfactory condition at the Chemainus hospital.

Cause of the accident was not disclosed.

RCMP said charges are being contemplated.

PEAKS ERUPT

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Three volcanoes have erupted in western Guatemala, raining hot ash and rocks on a nearby town and killing a baby boy, authorities said Sunday.

Most of the 12,000 residents of Yepocapa, 24 miles west of the capital, have fled their homes, the authorities said. They estimated damage to crops — mostly coffee and cotton — at $35 million.

The eruptions have affected more than 20 villages in the area.

CFB Civilians Talk Strike

EDMONTON (CP) — Rumblings of strike action among civilian employees at Canadian Forces Base Edmonton could spread across the country, Kent Green of Ottawa, national secretary-treasurer of the Union of National Defence Employees, said Sunday night.

Green, in Edmonton to attend a mass union rally tonight, said in an interview that there is discontent across the country with wages paid to the civilian employees of armed forces bases. However, he agreed after talking with Lou Purcell, president of the Alberta branch of the union, that the Alberta employees are much more militant than workers at other bases.

Ken Munroe, an executive officer with the union's Victoria local, confirmed the problem is a national one.

"I can confirm Mr. Green's statement is correct and includes this area," he said, "Federal civil servants are being paid rates way under outside ones."

Munroe said civil servants, who have put in years of service, would be reluctant to leave, jeopardizing their pension plans but short-term employees and "younger people" would be lured to outside industries because of the bigger wages.

Purcell said many of the 759 civilian employees, especially the heating plant operators, are working seven days a week, up to 12 hours a day, because the armed forces are unable to keep employees who leave to obtain better wages elsewhere.

Anderson Backed

VERNON (CP) — David Anderson says he considers he has been given a clear-cut mandate to lead the provincial Liberal party.

Doreen Braverman of Vancouver was re-elected president of the party, winning over Anthony (Tony) Graham of Vancouver.

Don Wray of Victoria was chosen vice-president, defeating nominees Don Green of Vancouver and Don Ohs of Kamloops.

Former Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford was elected membership chairman by acclamation.

In a close vote, the Liberal youth caucus delegates elected Sue Hutchinson of Victoria Liberal youth caucus chairman. She defeated University of B.C. student Tony Zipp to succeed UBC student Mark Moseley to the position.

Among the 11 regional vice-presidents elected, all by acclamation, was Frank Preston of Victoria.

Rich Nations Blamed for Famines

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A U.S. government study of the world food crisis says agricultural policies of rich nations have kept poor countries from becoming self-sufficient.

The study contradicts the view that the world is facing a crisis in which population growth outstrips the ability of countries to produce enough food, the Washington Post says.

The study predicts huge surpluses in rich countries and huge deficits in poor ones by 1985 unless there is "a serious re-evaluation of agricultural and food consumption policies in all parts of the world," the Post says.

There is no actual worldwide shortage of food the report says and blames hunger abroad on artificial price structures, subsidies, mismanagement, political decisions and "cheap food" policies.

It says, "since supply was seriously interrupted in 1972 (by the large-scale sale of U.S. grain to Russia) and 1974 (by bad weather), prices have remained high, supplies are unstable and the immediate future uncertain.

The study was prepared by the economic research service of the U.S. agriculture department and has not been published, the Post says, adding that the newspaper had obtained a copy.

A continuation of present trends, one projection in the report shows, might result in a surplus of 51.9 million tons of food in developed countries and a deficit of 47.6 million tons in developing countries by 1985.

A House of Represntatives agriculture subcommittee report released Saturday said mass starvation will occur throughout the world if food production is not intensified and, population patterns are not changed.
